The indexer:

- examines document, asking the following questions:
 - Did anything happen?
 - If yes, to whom or what did it happen?
 - Who or what did it?
 - Where did it happen? (from Dykstra, 1987, p.9)

Precis Index System:

The PRECIS Preserved Context Index System index System, 1976 Information Process and Retrieval C.K. Sharma & A.K. Sharma, 2007 It is now being increasingly felt that information technology is a major facilitator and catalyst for accelerating growth of the economy. It has integrated the world by the use of internet. The pervasive influence of information technology is so strong that there is hardly any sphere of human life in which it has not been able to make a niche for itself. Accordingly, the present day world expects from everyone to possess at least some acquaintance with this technology. The present book is primarily about computer based retrieval systems and its objective is to teach the basics of retrieval systems and its working. Information retrieval is a communication process that links the information user to a librarian. The communication normally involves the processing of text. An in-depth study of the present book will acquaint the readers with this technology. It is a complete treatise on information process that includes indexing, abstracting, citation indexing, bibliometrics, webometrics and Greenstone software. In addition, it provides a detailed study on application of ISO 9000 in the libraries, essence of TQM, resource sharing through networks, e-books and governance of intranet. Apart from these, it analytically approaches to information technology as a revolution in higher education and its impacts. The present book is extremely useful for all computer users in general and those concerned with libraries and library science in particular.

Classification Made Simple Eric J. Hunter, 2017-03-02 This established textbook introduces the essentials of classification as used for information processing. The third edition takes account of developments that have taken place since the second edition was published in 2002. Classification Made Simple provides a useful gateway to more advanced works and the study of specific schemes. As an introductory text, it will be invaluable to students of information work and to anyone inside or outside the information profession who needs to understand the manner in which classification can be utilized to facilitate and enhance organisation and retrieval. PGT

Sofroniou, 2012-08-28 The world of computing got smaller in 1993 in terms of both new ultra small computing systems and the downsizing of giant computer corporations. Yet for all its shrinkage, the computing industry also reached out in a big way. The new small computers were equipped with wireless networking systems and home and office computers were offered the promise of networking with other computers worldwide on a data superhighway. Today computing is affecting work and leisure alike, increasingly involved in factory and business operations, networking, defence, medicine, education and the domestic environment. Computers and their systems are influencing attitudes to privacy, employment and other social issues. To this effect, the reader must remember that the construction of a system is as complex as a house built in a swamp. It does
