debates over the industrial strategy and the position of manufacturing within industrialized economies Willing Slaves? Andrew Scott,1994-05-19 Many people believe that industrial relations have been transformed For some current developments are the result of new human resource management techniques which have overcome adversarial workplace traditions For others old attitudes remain their expression stifled by vigorous competition in product and labour markets Willing Slaves explores these competing claims It shows that managers have come to question past approaches to employee relations Nowadays they believe that winning workers hearts and minds is a crucial part of successful management Equally however managers have not yet found ways to make their new ideas work well Workers continue to place little trust in management inefficient working practices persist and attempts to build a new industrial relations have fallen short of the mark Willing Slaves concludes by arguing that the best way forward is for organisations to commit themselves to long term labour relations policies which enable workers to participate in management decision making The Quest for

Productivity Bruce W. Ahlstrand,1990-08-02 Illustrates the British attempt to boost labour productivity through an in depth study of Esso s Fawley refinery The Making of Modern Management John F. Wilson,Andrew Thomson,2006-08-24 Management has always been part of human organization but it is only in the last two centuries or so that it has been the central driver of economic activity as companies have moved from family firms to hugely complex multinational corporations with many layers of management The term management is commonly used in three ways as a process or activity as a structure in any organization and as a group or class of people carrying out certain roles in an organization This book is the first detailed account of the evolution of management in all three senses The focus is mainly on the UK but throughout the broader question of why corporate management structures developed so impressively in the USA Germany and Japan is borne in mind while arguably little progress was made in this regards in the UK Equally the authors consider why given that management is now so widely studied so little careful research has been undertaken into the evolution of the practice and the profession of management The book is divided into four sections Part One provides An Introduction to Management History Part Two Management and Organization explores the historical development through the 19th and 20th centuries Part Three Managers in Context looks at the social and cultural context of management and managers and Part Four considers three key functional areas labour marketing and accounting and finance This rich detailed and path breaking book will be essential reading for anyone wanting to understand the evolution of management as we now understand it whether academics students or managers themselves Management Laureates Arthur G. Bedeian,2018-04-17 First published in 2002 This volume compiles the autobiographies of the management discipline s most distinguished laureates Prior to this publication the available management literature provided little insight into the personal and intellectual lives the frustrations as well as the triumphs of the individuals in the management discipline Although such understanding could be conveyed in many forms perhaps the most intimate and fascinating of these for gaining behind the scenes insights is the autobiography

Thus the autobiographies in this volume as in the five companion volumes offer the reader not only a glimpse of the subjective determinants and personal experiences of the management discipline's most distinguished laureates but also a deeper understanding of what management is and what it is becoming. The various accounts reflect a diversity of approaches, interests and experiences. Morality as Organizational Practice Sarah May, Stefan Groth, Johannes Mücke, 2023

Organizations are increasingly the subject of moral debates. The positioning of enterprises of various sizes, non-governmental organizations or public institutions is discussed and taken as a basis for consumer, client and political decisions in a broad scope of topics. While the perspectives of customers, organizations and further stakeholders on such developments have been highlighted under the label of ethical consumption or vis-à-vis the fragility of organizations, the impact and effects on actors working in or for such organizations or subcontractors have so far only been dealt with tangentially or left as a blank spot. This volume turns its attention to the actors and organizational practices in order to trace the effects of these discourses on everyday lives. Similarly, the ethnographic case studies collected in this volume explore the extent to which everyday work life itself shapes discourses on the negotiation of morality in the present. Analysing Organisations Sandra Dawson, 1996-08-21. This is a fully revised and updated edition of Sandra Dawson's successful introductory textbook. The text is designed for students of business studies, marketing, accounting, administration and management at undergraduate and postgraduate, especially MBA levels. Expanded to include the growing interest in leadership, the book provides a clear, accessible framework for students to develop their understanding of organisations and the people in them. It is also relevant to those who are beginning a specialist study of organisations, particularly as it helps to bridge the gap between theory and practice. Risks, Dangers, and Rewards in the Nova Scotia Offshore Fishery Marian Binkley, 1995-09-27. According to Labour Canada, workers in the offshore fishery are more likely to be injured than workers in mining, construction or forestry. Yet until recently, these casualties at sea have been largely ignored by government and labour organizations. Risks, Dangers and Rewards in the Nova Scotia Offshore Fishery describes the hidden cost paid by workers in the Nova Scotia offshore fishery, a cost measured not in dollars and cents but in deaths and injuries. In this comprehensive study, Marian Binkley documents the level of risk and assesses the general health and stress level of workers in the Nova Scotia offshore fishery. She considers shipboard working environment, stress, accidents, injuries and general health, safety awareness, job satisfaction and family life, and the impact on working conditions of government resource policies and companies' scientific management strategies. Using statistical analysis, participant observation, surveys and interviews, Binkley establishes that factors such as technological developments, management changes and home and community life affect the immediate work experience of fishers and can increase the dangers of an already hazardous occupation.
