Ruane,2010-11-23 Christine Ruane examines the issues of gender and class in the teaching profession of late imperial Russia at a time when the vocation was becoming increasingly feminized in a zealously patriarchal society Teaching was the first profession open to women in the 1870s and by the end of the century almost half of all Russian teachers were female Yet the notion that mothers had a natural affinity for teaching was paradoxically matched by formal and informal bans against married women in the classroom Ruane reveals not only the patriarchal rationale but also how women teachers viewed their public roles and worked to reverse the marriage ban Ruane s research and insightful analysis broadens our knowledge of an emerging professional class especially newly educated and emancipated women during Russia s transition to a more modern society Philosophy and Its Public Role William Aiken,John Arthur,Bob Brecher,Richard Brook,David Carr,James

Child,Geoffrey Cupit,Wendy Donner,Anthony Ellis,Daniel Farrell,Bart Gruzalski,John Haldane,Jonathan Jacobs,Rex Martin,Terence McLaughlin,Andrew Moore,Lisa Portmess,2011-10-04 This collection of essays brings together moral social and political philosophers from Britain Canada New Zealand and the United States who explore a wide range of issues under the three headings of Philosophy Society and Culture Ethics Economics and Justice and Rights Law and Punishment The topics discussed range from the public responsibility of intellectuals to the justice of military tribunals and from posthumous reproduction to the death penalty Challenging Boundaries in Language Education Achilleas Kostoulas,2019-06-08

This edited collection challenges the perceptions of disciplinary linguistic geographical and ideological borders that run across language education By highlighting commonalities and tracing connections between diverse sub fields that have traditionally been studied separately the book shows how the perspectives of practitioners and researchers working in diverse areas of language education can mutually inform each other It consists of three thematic parts Part I outlines the field of language education and challenges its definition by highlighting additional theoretical constructs that have tended to be viewed as separate from language education Part II investigates curricular boundaries showing how the language learning curriculum can be enriched by connections with other curricular areas Lastly Part III looks into the challenges and opportunities associated with language education against the backdrop of globalisation Liberalism, Education and Schooling T.H. Standards Matter Committee on Standards in Public Life, 2013-01-17 The Committee for Standards in Public Life felt that the time was right to undertake a review of the key lessons that have been learnt since the Nolan Committee's first report ISBN 9780101285025 was published in 1995 about how to improve ethical standards in public life to stand back and reflect on what has been achieved and what still needs to be done The report argues that much of the basic infrastructure to improve standards is now in place Statements of key principles and codes of conduct have been adopted by most public bodies new regulators have been created or had their existing remits clarified and awareness of principles such as integrity accountability and openness has increased considerably The Committee believes standards of behaviour in many areas of public life have improved But the Committee finds it disturbing that concerns continue to be raised about the integrity of so many of the country's key institutions or those within them and the evidence of the last few years and months suggests that there is still much to do before the high standards in public life to which we all aspire are fully internalised in the cultures of all our public institutions The report concludes that the need now is not for more principles codes or regulators but rather for the existing arrangements to be more consistently and actively implemented

International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration Kenneth A. Leithwood, Judith Chapman, P. Corson, P. Hallinger, Ann Hart, 2012-12-06 EDITORS This introduction to the International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration describes some of the motivation for developing the book and several assumptions on which is based much of the work represented in its 31 chapters A synopsis of the contents of those chapters is also provided SOME KEY ASSUMPTIONS It is sometimes suggested that the search for an adequate understanding of leadership is doomed to fail After all there is little evidence of agreement about the concept in spite of prodigious efforts dating back hundreds if not thousands of years Such a view is captured for example in Bennis observation that Of all the hazy and confounding areas in social psychology leadership theory undoubtedly contends for top nomination Probably more has been written and less is known about leadership than any other topic in the behavioural sciences 1959 page 259 We do not find this state of affairs discouraging nor entirely accurate and of course it did not prevent Bennis from proceeding either One reason for our desire to continue in the face of such discouraging words is that a great deal of leadership research aspires to develop a general theory a theory which applies to all or most domains of organized human activity This aspiration inevitably produces decontextualized and therefore abstract categories of practice Howard Gardner s 1995 depiction of leadership as story
