Anthony Harris Times According to mainstream economic theory the prices of individual stocks respond rationally to unexpected news. However real market movements appear to respond to news in more complex and sometimes perverse ways overshooting or not reacting at all. Drawing on his hands on experience Professor Pepper puts forward a new theory based on the analysis of the supply of and demand for investible funds. He shows clearly that price movements are governed not by news but by the financial requirements of investors requirements which therefore become a powerful forecasting tool

Money, Credit and the Economy (Routledge Revivals) Richard Coghlan, 2014-02-04 The Theory of Money and Finance by the same author provided an introduction to the basic theory and concluded by introducing the idea of monetary disequilibrium with the money supply process operating through bank credit creation. Money, Credit, and Asset Prices Gordon T. Pepper, 1994 Whereas the prices of individual company stocks respond rationally to unexpected news movements in the market as a whole often do not behave in the same way. Indeed they frequently appear perverse. Prices peak when economic news is bad they respond only to good news when they are rising or only to bad when they are weak they overshoot and then correct violently. Drawing on his hands on experience Professor Pepper puts forward the theory that the market is responding to the balance between savings seeking investment and borrowers need for finance and not to events.
