Independent Police Complaints Commission Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Home Affairs Committee, 2013-02 When public trust in the police is tested by complaints of negligence misconduct and corruption a strong watchdog is vital to get to the truth but the IPCC leaves the public frustrated and faithless The public are bewildered by its continued reliance on the very forces it is investigating The IPCC investigated just a handful of cases and often arrived at the scene late when the trail had gone cold Serious cases involving police corruption or misconduct are left underinvestigated while the Commission devotes resources to less serious complaints It is woefully underequipped to supervise the 43 forces of England and Wales never mind the UKBA HMRC NCA and all the private sector agencies involved in policing It is buried under the weight of poor police investigations and bound by its limited powers The Committee makes a number of recommendations including that the Commission should be given a statutory power to require a force to implement its findings and in the most serious cases the Commission should instigate a year on review to ensure that its recommendations have been properly carried out the Commission should be given a statutory power to require a force to implement its findings and the most serious cases the Commission should instigate a year on review the Commission s jurisdiction should be extended to cover private sector contractors Towards Human Rights Compliance in Australian Prisons Anita

Mackay,2020-11-11 Imprisoned people have always been vulnerable and in need of human rights protections The slow but steady growth in the protection of imprisoned people s rights over recent decades in Australia has mostly come from incremental change to prison legislation and common law principles A radical influence is about to disrupt this slow change Australian prisons and other closed environments will soon be subject to international inspections by the United Nations Subcommittee on the Prevention of Torture SPT This is because the Australian Government ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention Against Torture and other Cruel Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment OPCAT in December 2017 Australia s international human rights law obligations as they apply to prisons are complex and stem from multiple Treaties This book distils these obligations into five prerequisites for compliance consistent with the preventive focus of the OPCAT They are reduce reliance on imprisonment align domestic legislation with Australia s international human rights law obligations shift the focus of imprisonment to the goal of rehabilitation and restoration support prison staff to treat imprisoned people in a human rights consistent manner ensure decent physical conditions in all prisons Attention to each of these five areas will help all levels of Australian government and prison managers take the steps required to move towards compliance Human rights led prison reform is necessary both to improve the lives of imprisoned people and for Australia to achieve compliance with the international human rights legal obligations to which it has voluntarily committed itself
