Das, 2013-12-13 A collection of works some previously published as articles in the journal Police Practice and Research this book provides both conceptual analysis and case studies exploring historical and sociopolitical contexts of conflicts in order to help readers better understand these themes The book defines the concepts of terrorism and radicalization discusses countering terrorism through intelligence gathering and examines different policing models The conclusions drawn from these findings may assist in combating terrorism and political violence around the world This book is a co publication with the International Police Executive Symposium IPES

Human Rights Albert A. Zinnos, 2007 Human rights refers to the concept of human beings as having universal rights or status regardless of legal jurisdiction and likewise other localising factors such as ethnicity and nationality For many the concept of human rights is based in religious principles However because a formal concept of human rights has not been universally accepted the term has some degree of variance between its use in different local jurisdictions difference in both meaningful substance as well as in protocols for and styles of application Ultimately the most general meaning of the term is one which can only apply universally and hence the term human rights is often itself an appeal to such transcended principles without basing such on existing legal concepts The term humanism refers to the developing doctrine of such universally applicable values and it is on the basic concept that human beings have innate rights that more specific local legal concepts are often based Within particular societies human rights refers to standards of behaviour as accepted within their respective legal systems regarding 1 the well being of individuals 2 the freedom and autonomy of individuals and 3 the representation of the human interest in government These rights commonly include the right to life the right to an adequate standard of living the prohibition of genocide freedom from torture and other mistreatment freedom of expression freedom of movement the right to self determination the right to education and the right to participation in cultural and political life These norms are based on the legal and political traditions of United Nations member states and are incorporated into international human rights instruments This new book brings together the latest book literature centred on this crucial topic

Massive shocking violations of human rights are taking place in conflicts crises and emergencies around the world There is broad agreement that human rights must be protected in the field on the ground where people are vulnerable But how is this to be done There is a crisis of protection world wide Human rights and humanitarian organizations are in a quandry They have all sounded the alarm But how can protection be extended to those at risk whether it be children women civilians non combatants or the victims of oppression and violence This is one of the first books to examine the need for protection in the field survey the experiences of the different human rights and humanitarian organizations and assess what works and what does not work For the most part it reveals sadly a crisis in protection efforts in the field But in doing so it will hopefully spur on greater efforts for strengthened protection in the field More effective protection of human rights is its quest
