Sources for English Local History W. B. Stephens, 1981-09-10

English local and regional history has attracted widespread attention in the last twenty five to thirty years Its study has expanded at undergraduate and postgraduate levels in universities polytechnics and at other institutions of higher education and it has long retained its popularity as a subject for adult education classes In schools the teaching of local history in its own right and as an ingredient of general history environmental studies and local and social studies is well established and commonly involves the use of original sources The expansion of genealogical studies into the wider area of family history has involved many individuals and groups in the investigation of the local conditions which existed where former generations lived and in this pursuit increasing use of local records has been made Many who seek to involve themselves in this work however find that they are ill equipped in the knowledge of what sources exist where they are to be found or what techniques are suitable in making the best use of them

The Future of Post-Human History Peter Baofu, 2012-03-15 Is history really so universalistic even when similar events happen in different contexts that as George Santayana 1905 once famously wrote those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it This more universalistic view of history can be contrasted with an opposing view which is more relativistic in orientation as shown by the equally known remark by Winston Churchill that history is written by the victor to the extent that what is regarded as true in history today may not be so in another era when a new victor comes into power THEX 2011 So which of the two views is correct here Contrary to these opposing views and other ideas as will be discussed in the book history in relation to both universality and relativity is neither possible or impossible nor desirable or undesirable to the extent that the respective ideologues on different sides would like us to believe Of course this challenge to the opposing views about history does not suggest that the study of history is controversial at best or that those fields related to the study of history like political science economics military studies anthropology sociology psychology philosophy theology literature ethics and so on should be rejected too Needless to say neither of these extreme views is reasonable Rather this book offers an alternative better way to understand the future of history especially in the dialectic context of universality and relativity while learning from different approaches in the literature but without favoring any one of them or integrating them since they are not necessarily compatible with each other Instead this book offers a new theory that is the multifold theory of history to go beyond the existing approaches in a novel way If successful this seminal project is to fundamentally change the way that we think about history from the combined perspectives of the mind nature society and culture with enormous implications for the human future and what the author originally called its post human fate
