Moln Di Amoln:

Without Jews? Magdalena Ruta, 2017-06-19 Magdalena Ruta explores the virtually unknown area of Yiddish literature created in Poland after World War II. She unravels before general readers and future researchers numerous texts and analyses them in a lucid and captivating manner. The book should appeal to readers from various disciplines as well as to a non-scholarly audience as it touches upon difficult and complex problems that only recently have become the subject of thorough research and that are still perceived as controversial such as Polish Jewish relations after the war or the fascination of a substantial number of Polish Jewish intellectuals with communism. It is worth stressing that the author deals with this sensitive topic competently and objectively. Prof. Monika Adamczyk Garbowska

Under the Red Banner Elvira Grözinger, Magdalena Ruta, 2008. The majority of European Yiddish-speaking Jews was murdered by Hitler's National Socialists; their cultural realm was destroyed. After the war, the Communist regimes suppressed Jewish culture, but despite emigration of Jewish survivors, small Jewish communities continued to exist and made efforts to revive their culture in most of the Communist countries. Jewish organizations, clubs, cultural societies, and theatres were founded, and a great number of Yiddish books, newspapers, and periodicals were printed despite political pressure, hostility, and persecution. The cultural activity which developed under the red banner cannot, of course, be compared to the immense impact the Yiddish culture experienced before the Second World War, but it was an important phenomenon in Jewish history which remained uninvestigated for a long time and has not been described in a proper way until today. This volume of seventeen essays is a collection of papers delivered by scholars from the USA, Sweden, Israel, Germany, and Poland at the conference on Yiddish Culture in the Communist Countries in the Postwar Era, which was organized at the Jagiellonian University Cracow in cooperation with the University of Potsdam in November 2006.

□□□□□□ □□□□ Mosheh Shkḷi'ar, 1997, □□□□□□ □□□□ A collection of essays, many of them published previously in the 1980s/90s. The essays on pp. 7-232 focus on life in the Warsaw ghetto. The Jews who were deported to Treblinka from July 1942 passed through Żamenhof Street as they left the city. Describes the ghetto uprising of 19 April 1943 in which Żelazo took part and life on the Aryan side where he fled after the uprising. Some Jews on the Aryan side were helped by the Polish organization Żegota; however, some were killed by Poles, especially during the Polish uprising in August 1944. The rest of the book includes essays on the rescue work of Raoul Wallenberg, the Nuremberg Trials, the Śliński trial, and life in Warsaw after the war.

Encyclopaedia of the History of Science, Technology, and Medicine in Non-Western Cultures Helaine Selin, 2013-11-11 The Encyclopaedia fills a gap in both the history of science and in cultural studies Reference works on other cultures tend either to omit science completely or pay little attention to it and those on the history of science almost always start with the Greeks with perhaps a mention of the Islamic world as a translator of Greek scientific works The purpose of the Encyclopaedia is to bring together knowledge of many disparate fields in one place and to legitimize the study of other cultures science Our aim is not to claim the superiority of other cultures but to engage in a mutual exchange of ideas The Western academic divisions of science technology and medicine have been united in the Encyclopaedia because in ancient cultures these disciplines were connected This work contributes to redressing the balance in the number of reference works devoted to the study of Western science and encourages awareness of cultural diversity The Encyclopaedia is the first compilation of this sort and it is testimony both to the earlier Eurocentric view of academia as well as to the widened vision of today There is nothing that crosses disciplinary and geographic boundaries dealing with both scientific and philosophical issues to the extent that this work does xi PERSONAL NOTE FROM THE EDITOR Many years ago I taught African history at a secondary school in Central Africa

Crouch,Jonathan Stökl,Anna Elise Zerneck,2012-12-06 This volume brings together experts in the study of ancient prayers and divination methods to analyse the variety of means by which human beings sought to communicate with their gods and by which the gods were seen to communicate with their worshippers In a departure from previous scholarship the volume brings together the study of prophecy as an intuitive form of divination with the study of technical methods of communication and other forms of institutionalised communication such as prayer Such a format allows divine human communication to be studied in both directions simultaneously the means by which the divine communicates to human beings through divination and the means by which human beings communicate with the divine through prayer This new perspective on the study of divine human divine communication allows scholars to better appreciate the way in which communication and the relationship between heaven and earth was conceived in the ancient near East Space Atlas James Trefil,2012 Filled with lavish illustrations this book is a grand tour of the universe Three ever widening domains are presented the planets the stars and the large scale universe itself each including the ones before it and extending outward The tour starts close to home within the first domain our own solar system There is a tremendous variety here from the sun scorched rocks of Mercury to the icy vastness of the Kuiper Belt beyond Pluto We see the sun and planets born from the collapse of an interstellar dust cloud whose atoms were themselves created in long dead stars Since many of these planets have been visited by space probes or landers we are able to benefit from the incredible technology of exploration developed by NASA and its counterparts in other countries The second domain is made up of the billions of stars in our own Milky Way galaxy We walk in the steps of the American astronomer Edwin Hubble who first established that the universe is made up of discrete galaxies then go on to examine the fundamental constituents of those galaxies the stars We see stars not as eternal lights in the sky but as objects born out of a desperate struggle between pressure and gravity We trace the life cycle of our own sun from its birth 4 5 billion years ago to its quiet end 6 billion years in the future We see the galaxy not as a serene and placid place but as a giant factory where primordial material is taken up into stars then returned to the galaxy enriched with the heavy elements necessary for life Finally we move to the ultimate domain the large scale structure of the universe itself in which galaxies are the building blocks We discover the most amazing fact that the solid stuff of stars and planets on which we have been concentrating up to this point make up only a few percent of the mass in the universe with the rest being composed of two mysterious entities called respectively dark matter and dark energy We descend into deep caverns to see scientists trying to detect dark matter as it sweeps by the Earth and we talk to theorists trying to solve the riddle of dark energy This quest brings us to the frontier of knowledge the edge of the unknown To conclude two ultimate questions remain How did the universe begin How will the universe end We trace our theories back to the first fraction of a second of the life of the universe and listen to the speculations of cosmologists about how it might all have started
