Restoring North America's Birds Robert A. Askins, 2008-10-01 DIV The decline of bird species in a wide range of North American habitats forests prairies shrublands mountain regions marshes and deserts has inspired two decades of intense scientific study of bird ecology and conservation But for professional scientists and amateur birders alike interpreting the results of these diverse studies is often complex and bewildering This accessible book pulls together recent research on bird species and habitats to show how basic ecological principles apply in seemingly different situations Robert A Askins provides an engaging introduction to bird ecology and concepts of landscape ecology focusing on such intriguing species as Bachman's Warbler Red Crossbill Mountain Plover and Marbled Murrelet Understanding the ancient landscapes of North America and how humans have changed them Askins says is essential for devising plans to protect and restore bird populations In addition to such obvious changes to the landscape as the clearing of forests and plowing of prairies more subtle changes also dramatically affect birds Species may disappear when we interrupt natural disturbances by suppressing wildfires or trapping out beaver or when we disrupt habitat with roads and housing developments Askins challenges some of the assumptions that underlie current conservation efforts and offers concrete recommendations based on sound ecological principles for protecting the rich natural diversity of North America's birds div The Last Flight of the Scarlet Macaw Bruce
