Multicultural Families, Home Literacies, and Mainstream Schooling Guofang Li, 2009-02-01 Lack of knowledge about immigrant and minority students learning outside school has contributed to the difficulties educators encounter when trying to embrace cultural diversity Many educators do not have the knowledge base about immigrant and minority children's culturally specific ways of learning in nonschool settings Given the changing cultural landscapes in today's schools we have an imperative to develop more situated understandings of immigrant and minority children's literacy learning experiences embedded in the social and cultural fabrics of their everyday lives outside school This volume of research meets this important need in the field It not only focuses on the complexity of literacy learning in diverse home contexts but also examines how literacy is practiced and lived in multiple ways within families of various backgrounds including those of Asian African and African American Hispanic White European and mixed heritages In addition it explores how these various culturally embedded home practices will inform school education and policy making in a larger socio political context The book makes an original and significant contribution to the fields of literacy education and school home and community partnerships Since immigrant and minority families literacy activities and the cultural contexts of their practices at home are not readily accessible to school personnel program developers policy makers or even researchers and educators this book will serve as an important resource for teachers practitioners undergraduate and graduate students teacher educators and university researchers who are in the fields of literacy education family literacy and new literacy studies minority and or immigrant education and second language education

Beyond "compensatory Education" Glendon P. Nimnicht, James A. Johnson, Far West Laboratory for Educational Research and Development, 1973

English as a Second Language in the Mainstream Constant Leung, Christine Davison, Bernard Mohan, 2014-07-15 Since it was first established in the 1970's the Applied Linguistics and Language Study series has become a major force in the study of practical problems in human communication and language education Drawing extensively on empirical research and theoretical work in linguistics sociology psychology and education the series explores key issues in language acquisition and language use English as a Second Language learners are now a considerable and increasing part of the mainstream of urban schools in English speaking countries Beyond the learning of English this development raises broader questions of language as a medium of education in a multilingual multicultural environment Drawing on their experience as researchers and educators in Australia Canada and England the authors of English as a Second Language in the Mainstream present an up to date account of advances in theory and practice Their analysis of system wide provision however suggests that a truly responsive educational vision is lacking government policy is inadequate educational practices for ESL students are either underdeveloped or poorly coordinated with practices for other students and the rhetoric of reform fails to engage significantly with issues of teaching and resources The authors argue towards a more comprehensive vision which can acknowledge the relation between issues concerning ESL students and issues concerning the educational system as a whole which can coordinate reforms in ESL education with general reforms which can explicitly and systematically integrate language learning and content learning and which can build more positively on the multilingual and multicultural nature of modern education for all students
