Maternal Instincts:

Maternal Instincts Ann Sumner Holmes, Claudia Nelson, 1997-12-13 Maternal Instincts brings together seven new essays exploring conflicting visions of motherhood and sexuality in a period during which both terms were undergoing radical change. Representations of both concepts mutated to accommodate different cultural contexts and individual ideologies. Drawing upon sources including literature, film, medical handbooks, popular science, and legal records, the articles collected here construct a vision of motherhood as alternately idealized, discredited, and fragmented by virtue of its connection with sexualities licit and illicit.

Maternal Instincts SM Thomas, 2023-12-15 All women become like their mothers. That is their tragedy. No man does. That's his. Oscar Wilde. Carrying the burden of truth on her shoulders, Paige Hanson makes a decision that will change the course of her settlement's history. Broken and bruised from the last few years of her life, she has very little left to lose and is willing to burn it all down to avenge those who fell before her. The one thing keeping her grounded though is her love for her son. But is love enough to prevent her from making the ultimate sacrifice for the greater good?

Mother Nature Sarah Blaffer Hrdy, 1999 We are tempted to think of maternal instinct as a quality a woman has or lacks. But the belief that mothers instinctively nurture their offspring, one of the West's most cherished ideals and a view widely accepted even in scientific circles, has become increasingly controversial. Mother Nature presents a radical new way of understanding how mothers act and why, and how this new understanding is changing the way scientists think about how evolution works. Drawing on anthropology, history, literature, developmental psychology, and animal behavior, Sarah Hrdy examines the distinct biological and genetic elements that constitute maternal instinct. She strips away the biases implicit in conventional stereotypes of female nature to give us very different and provocative perspectives on maternal ambivalence, the links between maturity and ambition, mother love and sexual love, and why age-old tensions between the sexes persist and are being played out today in efforts to control women's reproductive choices. Combining decades of research with her own experience as a mother, Hrdy makes clear in this remarkable book what it means from a historical and evolutionary perspective to be a mother and explains how this knowledge has transformed our understanding of human development and behavior.

Drug Use, Recovery, and Maternal Instinct Bias Caitlyn D. Placek, 2024-01-26 Drug Use, Recovery, and Maternal Instinct Bias: A Biocultural and Social Ecological Approach draws upon theoretical perspectives in anthropology and public health to provide insight into the barriers women experience when seeking treatment for substance use disorders. In both theoretical perspectives in biological anthropology and social discourse within the United States, there is an emphasis on explaining why women avoid or should avoid using psychoactive substances during their reproductive years, especially during pregnancy. Theories of women's drug avoidance during the childbearing years rely on statistics to show that women are less likely to use all types of illicit drugs than their male counterparts. This gender gap, however, is closing in high-income countries (HICs), calling for more research on the biocultural and social ecological factors contributing to women's drug use and the barriers to their recovery The book uses qualitative data from participants in Indiana to illustrate women's struggles along the pathway to recovery The overarching conclusion is that internalized models of maternal instinct a topic inherent in theoretical and public discourse can often impede efforts for women seeking treatment and recovery is only possible when proper social and structural supports are in place Maternal Instincts and the

Between Teaching and Caring in the Preschool John C. Pruitt, 2020-07-06 In Between Teaching and Caring in the Preschool John C. Pruitt argues that preschool teaching is more than a set of roles and duties tied to institutional expectations Drawing on two years of ethnographic fieldwork twenty three interviews and countless conversations with preschool teachers and analysis of preschool documents Pruitt opens the black box of the preschool to show the complexity of the preschool teacher identity as it unfolds in everyday practices of teaching and caring His analysis of preschool teachers' talk and interaction addresses pertinent sociological and early childhood education themes including classroom management social control emotions and identity construction He demonstrates there is more going on in the preschool than teaching young children and caring for them Through practices of classroom management and teaching language preschool teachers socialize children into education contexts and exert social control in and through teaching practices By managing emotions preschool teachers also manage impressions of themselves and the preschool He also shows how preschool teachers use resources like Montessori pedagogy and their lived experience to construct authenticity Pruitt concludes that institutions such as ECE shape identities within and away from the institution
