Arnold Honig

Parents And The Achieving Child:

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIP OF HIGH & LOW ACHIEVING STUDENTS Dr. Deepa David Sevak, How to Parent So Children Will Learn Sylvia B. Rimm, 2021-04-23 Dr Rimm provides practical compassionate no nonsense advice for raising happy secure and productive children from preschool to college This book contains easy to follow parent pointers sample dialogues and step by step examples to show parents how to select appropriate rewards and punishments decrease arguments and power struggles set limits nurture creativity encourage appropriate independence without giving children too much power guide children toward good study habits and much more Parents will refer to the topics in this book again and again Early Parenting and Later Child Achievement Arnold Honig, 1991-02-04 Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't Terry S Trepper, Bill Borchardt, 2013-02-01 Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't offers specific recommendations for increasing family harmony through more effective parenting practices This important new book helps parents improve family understanding and relationships by reducing the emotional interference anger betrayal guilt shame and fear that blocks healthier and happier family connections Each chapter is laced with knowledge and therapeutic humor that examine dimensions to family living in a way that helps parents lighten up a little rather than tighten up a lot Parents will find that encouraging family members to take one another less seriously increases their opportunities for more constructive interactions Marital and family counselors social workers psychologists guidance counselors psychiatrists and other human service professionals can use the valuable information in this book to help families view their interfamily relationships more objectively and to take each other less seriously creating more constructive interactions and happier stronger relationships Therapists will learn to encourage clients to question and challenge conventional ideas of the family that often lead to demands exaggerations irrational expectations personalizations and self and other judgments all of which contaminate the family relationship Using the scientific principles of rational thinking Author Bill Borchardt questions the relationship between parents and their children and the degree of influence parents have over their children He places the focus on a parental advocacy model by which parents are encouraged to give themselves some emotional slack and to develop a sense of humility for what they can and cannot do for their children This starts the process of family members learning what to realistically expect and accept from one another Borchardt shows readers that by taking the sacredness and golden rules out of the definitions of family living emotional upset and oppositional behavioral obstacles can be minimized and more emotional well being and family fulfillment can be experienced Each chapter in Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't is lined with knowledge and therapeutic humor that examines dimensions of family living in a way that assists families in loosening up a little rather than tightening up a lot This improves family members understanding of and relationships among one another by reducing the emotional interference feelings of anger betrayal guilt shame fear that blocks healthy happy family connections and by offering specific practical recommendations for increasing family harmony

Through his analyses of 30 topics of family living presented under the umbrella of learning what to realistically expect of imperfect parents of imperfect children in an imperfect world Borchardt reveals to readers that individuals are active participants in creating their own emotional problems and disturbances people exaggerate the significance of past family disturbances emotional slack and fewer unrealistic demands of self and others leads to a happier family family members often disturb themselves unnecessarily by escalating family values into sacred demands families don't shape character they reveal it Unlike other books about family living Making Families Work and What To Do When They Don't analyzes the dysfunctional ideas that family members hold about themselves and others rather than the dysfunctional relationships that naturally exist between fallible human beings In this guidebook readers learn creative new ways of approaching old family problems and they gain succinct explanations of how they can help their own and other families do things differently and do different things to improve emotional and behavioral well being within the family

Rationality and the Pursuit of Happiness Michael E. Bernard, 2010-11-15 RATIONALITY AND THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS This book is a labor of love Michael Bernard has painstakingly transcribed a number of Albert Ellis's therapy and demonstration sessions as well as a selection of his lectures and has used this material to excellent effect to make Dr Ellis's views on psychological health and happiness come alive. A gem of a book on a gem of a man by a gem of an author. Professor Windy Dryden, Goldsmiths University of London, UK.

Michael Bernard's book reveals the importance of rationality as a positive faculty of mind that enables people to strengthen their resilience and self-efficacy in order to not only cope with the inevitable challenges, demands, and changes characteristic of our post-modern age but in addition through the application of different principles of rational living identified by legendary psychologist Albert Ellis to live fulfilled and meaningful professional and personal lives. I confidently commend this book.

Professor Field Rickards, Dean, Graduate School of Education, University of Melbourne, Australia.

Albert Ellis, one of the world's most influential psychologists, founded Rational Emotive Behavior Therapy (REBT) in the 1950s. Over the years, this pioneering form of cognitive behavior therapy has advanced the emotional well-being of hundreds of thousands of people around the world. Yet while Ellis's innovative approaches for helping people with emotional difficulties are well known, his views on the pursuit of personal happiness, which have also influenced generations of people both with and without such problems, are far more elusive. Ellis's powerful arguments in favor of the rational pursuit of happiness are set out for the very first time in this book. Rationality and the Pursuit of Happiness presents Ellis's views on how the principles of rational living can be used by anyone to achieve lifelong happiness. Transcripts of private counseling sessions and public forums reveal the great power of rationality and the self-defeating nature of irrationality. Drawing on 50 years of Ellis's writing, Michael Bernard shows how the emotional misery that arises from irrational thinking of the human psyche can obstruct our innate potential for self-actualization and happiness. In doing so, he firmly establishes Ellis as a pioneer of positive psychology and a human being whose superior intellect and years of public education and psychotherapy experience offer genuine insights into the eternal question of what makes for a happy life.

School Systems, Parent Behavior, and Academic Achievement Emma Sorbring, Jennifer E. Lansford, 2019-09-17. This volume takes an international and multidisciplinary approach to understanding students' academic achievement. It does so by integrating educational literature with developmental psychology and family studies perspectives. Each of the nine chapters focuses on a particular country: China, Colombia, Italy, Jordan, Kenya, the Philippines, Sweden, Thailand, or the United States. It describes the country as a cultural context, examines the current school system and parenting in light of the school system, and provides empirical evidence from that country regarding links between parenting and students' academic achievement. The book highlights similarities and differences in education and parenting across these nine countries, all varying widely in socioeconomic and cultural factors that affect schools and families. The volume contributes to greater understanding of links between parenting and academic performance in different cultural groups. It sheds light on how school systems and parenting are embedded in larger cultural settings that have implications for students' educational experiences and academic achievement. As two of the most important contexts in which children and adolescents spend time, understanding how schools and families jointly contribute to academic achievement holds promise for advancing the international agenda of promoting quality education for all African American Children Who Have Experienced Homelessness Nancy C. Compton, 2021-10-28 First published in 1998 While there are ever increasing numbers of families with young children becoming homeless little is known about interventions which can promote homeless childrens resiliency This study identifies factors that contribute to homeless children s positive outcomes Seventeen African American children and their mothers were identified through an agency that serves high risk homeless families The children were between the ages of three and six and a half Narrowing the Achievement Gap Janet Goodall, 2017-04-21 Narrowing the Achievement Gap proposes a radical change to our conception of learning education and schooling arguing that parental engagement is the best lever we have for school improvement and closing the achievement gap Unique in its focus on original research linking underachievement and parental engagement this book uses a range of international case studies to demonstrate that achievement isn t only reliant on what happens in school and that what happens out of school is equally important Each chapter explores how schools can actively engage with parents and communities to reinstate education in the home and to generate support to combat issues out of their control including poverty deprivation and a lack of social capital Although schools have an integral part to play in this process it argues that parents and society must reconsider their own educational responsibility regardless of background and offers a solid research base and practical suggestions to help do so Consisting of an in depth and contemporary study of this significant issue in educational achievement and written by an expert in the field this text will appeal to researchers academics and postgraduate students in the fields of education schooling sociology of education school effectiveness and improvement school policy and school leadership Family-School Links Alan Booth, Judith F. Dunn, 2013-10-31 Based on the presentations and discussions from a national symposium on family school links held at the Pennsylvania State University this volume brings together psychologists sociologists educators and policymakers studying the bidirectional effects between schools and families This topic the links between families and schools and how these affect children s educational achievement encompasses a host of questions each of key social and educational significance How far does parental involvement in schools affect children s experiences and achievement at school What explains the great differences between schools families and communities in the extent of such involvement Are these differences a matter of school practices or do they reflect much broader social and cultural divisions What is the nature of the impact schools have on children and their families How can family school partnerships be fostered in a way that helps children The chapter authors consider these questions and related issues present different perspectives highlight various aspects of the issues and suggest widely differing answers This volume s goal is to provide the reader with current information on what is known about family school community links and to provoke new ways of thinking about these links and their implications for children s education and well being Developmental Psychopathology and Family Process E.
