Sculpture At Chartres:

Sculpture at Chartres Peter Kidson,1958 High Gothic Sculpture at Chartres Cathedral, the Tomb of the Count of Joigny, and the Master of the Warrior Saints Anne McGee Morganstern,2011 Re examines the sculpture on the transept porches of Chartres Cathedral and revises their chronology based on information from the previously unstudied tomb of the count of Joigny Documents the production of the monument within the context of French High Gothic sculpture Provided by publisher The "headmaster" of Chartres and the Origins of "Gothic" Sculpture C. Edson Armi,1994 Professor Armi s study represents a dramatic reconsideration of the origins of Gothic sculpture by employing new methodology and refuting previously accepted theories Despite the aesthetic and historical significance of the Royal Portal no documentation of its design and construction exists Nevertheless over the last century a set of truths about the facade have become accepted Employing a new methodology that overcomes the lack of documents with a revised form of connoisseurship Edson Armi proposes a radically different biography of the Headmaster that has far reaching implications for the study of Gothic sculpture With a new perspective on the most important mid twelfth century portal the book concludes that the style and cultural context of le de France sculpture is less defined and more diverse than previously imagined More importantly the book argues that the forms of art as well as the design and working procedures in the Paris basin can no longer be seen as unique or separate from the practices of provincial French art in the period before 1140

the east south to Bourges and Dijon and west to Chartres and Angers larger than life size statues of human figures were arranged along portal jambs many carved as if wearing the dress of the highest ranks of French society This study takes a close look at twelfth century human figure sculpture describing represented clothing defining the language of textiles and dress that would have been legible in the twelfth century and investigating rationale and significance The concepts conveyed through these extraordinary visual documents and the possible motivations of the patrons of portal programs with column figures are examined through contemporaneous historical textual and visual evidence in various media Appendices include analysis of sculpture production and the transportation and fabrication in limestone from Paris Janet Snyder s new study considers how patrons used sculpture to express and shape perceived reality employing images of textiles and clothing that had political economic and social significances
