Open hostilities in the Korean War ended on the 27th of July 1953 The armistice that was signed at that time remains the poignant symbol of an incomplete conclusion of a war that retains a distinct possibility of resuming at short notice So what did Australia contribute to the Korean War from June 1950 to July 1953 What were the Australians doing there How significant was the contribution and what difference did it make What has that meant for Australia since then and what might that mean for Australia into the future Australians served at sea on land and in the air alongside their United Nations partners during the war They fought with distinction from bitterly cold mountain tops to the frozen decks of aircraft carriers and in dogfights overhead This book includes the perspectives of leading academics practitioners and veterans contributing fresh ideas on the conduct and legacy of the Korean War International perspectives from allies and adversaries provide contrasting counterpoints that help create a more nuanced understanding of Australia s relatively small but nonetheless important contribution of forces in the Korean War The book finishes with some reflections on implications that the Korean War still carries for Australia and the world to this day International Warbirds John C. Australian Defence Procurement Ian Bellamy, James L. Richardson, 1970 Air Pictorial, 2002 Taking the Lead Mark Lax, 2020-03-01 As Australia withdrew from Vietnam in 1972 few in the Australian Defence Force none the least those in the Royal Australian Air Force could foresee the immense change that would sweep across the Service New and emerging international relationships changing Australian social attitudes and a growing sense of defence self reliance would all impact how the RAAF contributed to the application of air power in the defence of the nation and in supporting Australia's wider national interests For the first time Taking the Lead brings to the reader a comprehensive and authoritative study of how the RAAF matured over its third quarter century how it met the challenges faced and how it finally came of age able to take the lead when asked By 1996

plans were in place such that the RAAF was well on the way to becoming the world's first fifth generation air force by making a remarkable transition. This volume also dispels the myth that the RAAF did little in the latter part of the twentieth century but train. In fact the RAAF was at the forefront of operations as wide afield as the Sub Continent, the Middle East, Africa and South East Asia. Then there was aid to the civil community as well as aid to those nations seeking help in wider Asia Pacific region. Clever force restructuring for expeditionary operations amid the stress of downsizing by almost a third meant that future operations in the twenty first century were to be a success. Taking the Lead is not just about aircraft bases and flying. It considers the strategic environment of the era, the factors that affected personnel and training, how the RAAF's force structure advanced and how the RAAF managed its successes and failures. For those seeking to learn more about their air force, then this book is essential reading. Taking the Lead covers this vital part of the RAAF's unfolding narrative and perfectly illustrates how the RAAF remained true to its motto Per Ardua ad Astra Through Adversity to the Stars.
