FINGERET OF AN AGGRESSIVE BASELINER

When you're a baseliner, you're often the one who's being hit by the opponent's powerful backhand. This is why it's so important to have a strong backhand of your own. A strong backhand allows you to hit the ball with more power and accuracy, and it also allows you to defend against the opponent's powerful backhand. To develop a strong backhand, you need to focus on your footwork and your swing. Make sure you're in a ready position, with your feet shoulder-width apart and your knees bent. When you swing, make sure you're using your legs and hips to generate power, and not just your arms. This will help you hit the ball with more force and control.
