Abstract Due to the steady increase in the number of older adults among the Brazilian population, the aim of the present article is to reflect on the care provided to the elderly based on Viktor Frankl's logotherapy as an alternative approach to understanding more deeply what this life stage means. For this purpose, demographic data on the population of older adults are provided, together with distinct views on aging and its relationship to the quality of life. Next, logotherapy, from its conceptions about the relationship of the person to finitude and to the person's possibilities for existence, is presented as a psychological theory likely to improve the understanding of aging and to represent a possible approach to the care of older adults. Based on an understanding of humans as beings of power and therefore as self-transcendent and endowed with the will to meaning, the possibility of psychology investing in the relationship with alterity as the grounds for interventions targeting older adults is emphasized.

2015 Manfred Diehl, PhD, Hans-Werner Wahl, PhD, 2014-12-20 Print CourseSmart Aging in Society Matilda White Riley, Beth B. Hess, Kathleen Bond, 2025-07-01 Originally published in 1983 Aging in Society consists of a selection of papers that were prepared by various authors as background papers for the 1981 White House Conference on Aging The papers provided an overview of knowledge on various aspects of aging in the United States at the time Topics covered include aging and the family economic aspects of an aging population recent trends in the geographical distribution of the elderly population and mortality and health differentials by sex Today it can be read in its historical context The Meanings of Age Bernice L. Neugarten, 1996-12-15 Neugarten who explains and highlights Neugarten s contributions in light of the most recent research in the fields of gerontology and social policy Carefully edited by Dail A Neugarten each chapter presents the reader with Bernice Neugarten s original formulations on topics such as age norms and age constraints the changing meanings of age and age neutral social policy Parent-child Relations Throughout Life Karl Pillemer, Kathleen McCartney, 2013-09-05 The study of parent child relationships has long been of interest to behavioral scientists both for its theoretical importance and for its practice and policy implications There are however certain limitations to the knowledge in this area First research on parents and children is spread throughout a number of disciplines and as a consequence is not well integrated Further there has been little dialogue among researchers concerned with parents of young children and those interested in middle aged and elderly parents and their offspring The present volume predicates the notion that there is considerable similarity in the issues explored by researchers on different points of the life course Contributions by leading scholars in psychology sociology and anthropology are organized into four sections each of which contains a treatment of at least two stages in the life course The sections cover attachment in early childhood and in later life life course transitions relationships within families and the influence of social structural factors on parent child relations Although the chapters make important contributions to basic research and theory many also deal with issues of public concern such as day care maternal employment gay and lesbian relationships and care of the elderly Behavioral Sciences Research in Mental Health , 1983 Aging and Development Ann O'Hanlon, Peter Coleman, 2018-04-17 With increasing numbers of the population living into old age we need a better understanding of the nature and experience of ageing in all its aspects Up to now very few texts have considered this in any depth but Ageing and Development a new volume in the Texts in Developmental Psychology series provides a detailed and comprehensive overview of the theories and research in adult development into old age The classic early accounts of theorists such as Jung and Erikson are considered as well as their present day successors Particular attention is given to theories of adjustment to loss and to the threat of loss which dominate current gerontological research A notable feature of the book is the separate section devoted to the psychology of advanced old age to life in states of physical and or mental frailty and to the survival of the self in these circumstances There is a strong emphasis throughout on up to date empirical research and illustrative case examples The reader is constantly encouraged to take a critical perspective to understand the strengths and limitations of different studies and to think about the issues raised in terms of their own lives Family and Individual Development J.
