Participation In World Treaties On The Protection Of The Environment A Collection Of Data:

Participation in World Treaties on the Protection of the Environment: A Collection of Data Maria Clara Maffei, 1996-03-11 This book is an exercise in the law of treaties focusing on treaties For The protection of the environment The texts of the relevant instruments are not reproduced since much of the work is devoted To The legal formalities such as the dates of ratification The territorial extensions The subtle wordings of declarations and reservations etc The book does not encompass all the multilateral treaties relating to protection of the environment rather it includes data only on those instruments that have a world wide scope either in terms of their sphere of territorial application or because of the universal character of the objectives they foster A few geographically restricted treaties have nevertheless been included For The bearing they have on global environmental protection

The United Nations Convention on the Law of International Watercourses Attila Tanzi, Maurizio Arcari, 2021-11-29 Problems relating to the non navigational uses of international watercourses have the capacity to be among the most serious causes of international conflicts in the new century The Convention adopted by the UN General Assembly on 21 May 1997 is the first comprehensive attempt to provide at the universal level a coherent set of rules for the avoidance management and settlement of such conflicts This book gives a brief history of the codification process leading to the adoption of the Convention and considers the conflicting approaches to the subject that have been taken over the years It examines the Convention as future treaty law and considers its impact on customary law putting it in the context of existing relevant international instruments It analyses the substantive principles of equitable utilisation and of no harm on the one hand and the procedural obligations on the other and emphasises their mutual complementarity The specific rules on the environmental protection of watercourses are given separate consideration underlining the indivisibility of water quality and water quantity issues while the dispute settlement provisions set out in the Convention are studied with special emphasis on negotiated settlement as their ultimate aim This book will be a compulsory tool for law makers negotiators of future watercourse agreements and water law practitioners as well as a required reading for students of the international law of shared natural resources

A Climate of Injustice J. Timmons Roberts, Bradley Parks, 2006-11-22 The global debate over who should take action to address climate change is extremely precarious as diametrically opposed perceptions of climate justice threaten the prospects for any long term agreement Poor nations fear limits on their efforts to grow economically and meet the needs of their own people while powerful industrial nations including the United States refuse to curtail their own excesses unless developing countries make similar sacrifices Meanwhile although industrialized countries are responsible for 60 percent of the greenhouse gas emissions that contribute to climate change developing countries suffer the worst and first effects of climate related disasters including droughts floods and storms because of their geographical locations In A Climate of Injustice J Timmons Roberts and Bradley Parks analyze the role that inequality between rich and poor nations plays in the negotiation of global climate agreements Roberts and Parks argue that global inequality dampens cooperative efforts by reinforcing the structuralist worldviews and causal beliefs of many poor nations eroding conditions of generalized trust and promoting particularistic notions of fair solutions They develop new measures of climate related inequality analyzing fatality and homelessness rates from hydrometeorological disasters patterns of emissions inequality and participation in international environmental regimes Until we recognize that reaching a North South global climate pact requires addressing larger issues of inequality and striking a global bargain on environment and development Roberts and Parks argue the current policy gridlock will remain unresolved

State Participation in International Treaty Regimes Professor Srini Sitaraman, 2013-03-28 Why do some states resist entering into international treaty regimes while others demonstrate eagerness to participate Although factors such as degree of pressure exerted by international actors ambiguity in the treaty language and a regime's lack of teeth enforcement and sanctioning mechanism do affect participation this book investigates whether internal domestic factors may ultimately be responsible for influencing why a state resists or joins international treaty regimes The volume draws on United Nations treaty ratification data from three different issue areas arms control environment and human rights to study the participation patterns of democracies and non democracies in international treaty regimes Incorporating two in depth case studies on the United States and China the author traces the impact of domestic institutional structure state capacity and internal social norms on state decisions to resist or participate

Marine Specially Protected Area: The General Aspects and the Mediterranean Regional System Tullio Scovazzi, 1999-01-01 In the last few years several States have established specially protected marine areas under their domestic legislation At the international level the trend towards providing an increased protection to certain marine spaces has also been reflected in a number of treaties and declarations This volume reviews the recent developments in the field of specially protected marine areas and preservation of the marine environment in general with particular emphasis on a specific region the Mediterranean Sea Special attention is devoted to the latter for three reasons First the regional framework for the protection of the environment in the Mediterranean the so called Barcelona system has recently been updated and strengthened Second the Mediterranean is a typical example of the category of semi enclosed seas where international cooperation between the bordering States should be particularly encouraged in various fields this also explains why the scope of this book has been enlarged to also cover fisheries a field which is closely connected to the sustainable development of marine areas Last and least the parochial inclination of the editor also influenced his choice To complete the picture the relevant texts have been reproduced and a series of maps showing some specially protected marine areas have been drawn

The International Journal of Marine and Coastal Law, 1997      European Legal Book Index, 1996      Conducting Research on Global Environmental Agreement-Making Hannah Hughes, Alice B. M. Vadrot, 2023-08-10 Global environmental negotiations have become central sites for studying the interaction between politics power and environmental degradation This book challenges what constitutes the sites actors and processes of negotiations beyond conventional approaches and provides a critical multidisciplinary and applied perspective reflecting recent developments such as the increase of actor diversity and the digitalisation of global environmental meetings It provides a step by step guide to the study of global environmental negotiations using accessible language and illustrative examples from different negotiation settings including climate change biodiversity and ocean protection It introduces the concept of agreement making to broaden understanding of what is studied as a site of negotiation illustrating how diverse methods can be applied to research the actors processes and order making It provides practical guidance and methodological tools for students researchers and practitioners participating in global environmental agreement making One of a series of publications associated with the Earth System Governance Project www.cambridge.org/earth-system-governance
