Abstract

Gender equality in political participation is a fundamental aspect of modern democratic governance. According to international standards, men and women should have equal rights and opportunities for full participation in all aspects and levels of political processes. However, in practice it is much more challenging for women to enjoy and exercise these rights. The purpose of this research is to analyze the current levels of women's participation in decision-making processes in Kosovo, as well as to highlight the main challenges that Kosovar women face on their way to advancing their position. Qualitative methods were used for the extraction of this research, using primary and secondary sources. Laws and regulations related to the topic were used as the primary source, while electronic media and various relevant research reports published by local institutions were used as secondary sources. The concept of gender equality is an essential social indicator, with which the level of emancipation of Albanian society, its attitude towards women and its gender and civic roles can be "measured" and evaluated.

The purpose of the paper is to investigate the extent of gender discrimination in the selected institutions and the career opportunities of female entrepreneurs. The main aim is not to highlight gender discrimination but to study whether gender equality exists not only in terms of the wage gap but also in other aspects such as inequality in recruitment and promotion programs as well as in the dominance of senior management positions in important aspects of career management. As well as making a comparison, based on gender, between private, financial and public institutions to draw a conclusion in which gender equality is highly respected throughout the career development of women in decision-making.

Key words: equality, discrimination, decision-making, advancement, management, female entrepreneurs
