The New York Schools of Music and the Visual Arts Steven

Johnson, 2012-11-12. Musicians and artists have always shared mutual interests and exchanged theories of art and creativity. This exchange climaxed just after World War II when a group of New York-based musicians, including John Cage, Morton Feldman, Earle Brown, and David Tudor, formed friendships with a group of painters. The latter group, now known collectively as either the New York School or the Abstract Expressionists, included Jackson Pollock, Willem de Kooning, Robert Motherwell, Mark Rothko, Barnett Newman, Clyfford Still, Franz Kline, Phillip Guston, and William Baziotes. The group also included a younger generation of artists, particularly Robert Rauschenberg and Jasper Johns, that stood somewhat apart from the Abstract Expressionists. This group of painters created what is arguably the first significant American movement in the visual arts. Inspired by the artists, the New York School composers accomplished a similar feat. By the beginning of the 1960s, the New York Schools of art and music had assumed a position of leadership in the world of art. For anyone interested in the development of 20th-century art, music, and culture, The New York Schools of Music and Art will make for illuminating reading.

Poetic Thinking. Now Marko Pajević, 2023-09-15. This book presents my concept of poetic thinking in the context of debates around the anthropological question: what is being human, building on thinking, language, and dialogical thinking, developing a poetological anthropology. It evokes political and social issues to demonstrate why poetics is of general relevance for our times. The chapters relate these questions to insights of quantum physics and neurosciences and discuss aspects of contemporary technology, media, and medicine, employing notions such as atmospheres, immanent transcendence, silence, and presence from contemporary thinkers. Poetic thinking considers the world in its togetherness, offering an alternative to the opposition of subject and object. It demonstrates the transformative power in the interaction of the form of language and the form of life. Poetic thinking takes place when a subject constitutes itself in creative and dialogical language, transforming its ways of feeling and thinking in short, its way of perceiving the world.
