Brown, 2025-08-19 How school choice reproduces inequality by creating gendered and socioeconomic decision making labor for parents School choice policies have proliferated in recent years with parents forced to navigate complex admission processes In New York City families have more options than ever before but the search for the right school has proven to be time consuming painstaking and anxiety provoking work In Kindergarten Panic Bailey Brown examines the experiences of parents as they search for elementary schools finding that socioeconomic inequalities and persistent disparities in resources information access and decision making power contribute to broad variation in how families develop and manage their school choice labor strategies The labor that parents invest in searching for schools is unevenly distributed and shaped by gender socioeconomic background and neighborhood contexts Drawing on interviews with more than a hundred parents of elementary school students in New York City Brown shows how inequality manifests itself as parents and students deal with the uncertainties of the school choice process By conceptualizing school decision making as labor she makes visible the often unseen work that goes into making educational decisions for children Brown argues that recognizing school choice as labor both deepens our theoretical understanding of the challenges families confront and identifies vast disparities in parents labor across socioeconomic and gender divisions If parents continue to be charged with searching for schools we must take seriously how school choice policies reproduce the kind of inequality they are intended to reduce and we must invest in providing equitable access to high quality public schooling for all families      Keeping the User in Mind Valeda Dent Goodman, 2009-03-24 Keeping the User in Mind provides a practical down to earth look at instructional design and its uses in the academic library Focus is given to teaching and measuring information literacy skills and chapters also review the history of the field providing an overview of some relevant technological innovations that might be a part of any library s instructional design mosaic Fuelled by the need for asynchronous learning the availability of the Web and the need to evaluate learning outcomes instructional design covers a wide range of approaches and models How do libraries build environments that support learning encourage the infusion of technology and be nimble enough to adjust to changing user needs Instructional design is an area that may provide some insight This book will provide a down to earth look at instructional design and its uses in the academic library with a particular look at teaching and measuring information literacy skills Chapters also review the history of the field and provide an overview of some current relevant technological innovations that might be a part of any library's instructional design mosaic. One of very few monographs focusing exclusively on instructional design in library environments. Written by an author with international experience in libraries, instructional evaluation, and information technology. Author also has experience designing virtual learning tools. Written with practical application of instructional design principles in mind, including a sample instructional design process used to construct an actual information literacy tutorial for an academic library.

Dispositions as Habits of Mind Erskine S.

Dottin, 2009-11-11 Dispositions as Habits of Mind provides opportunities for candidates in teacher education programs which focus on nurturing and assessing dispositions to see the habits of mind for making professional conduct more intelligent, practice them, and receive feedback about their performance. Some scholars have pointed out that the rush by many teacher education programs to meet accreditation mandates with regard to dispositions has generated a host of measures for assessing dispositions and very little focus on programs first establishing some conceptual understanding of the construct and then teaching candidates about dispositions. This work on dispositions highlights the serious effort to help teachers and other professional school personnel to form habits and use them as active means in making their professional conduct more effective and intelligent.

Understanding and Interpreting Educational Research Ronald C. Martella, J. Ron Nelson, Robert L. Morgan, Nancy E. Marchand-Martella, 2013-04-18 This user-friendly text takes a learn-by-doing approach to exploring research design issues in education and psychology, offering evenhanded coverage of quantitative, qualitative, mixed methods, and single case designs. Readers learn the basics of different methods and steps for critically examining any study's design, data, and conclusions using sample peer-reviewed journal articles as practice opportunities. The text is unique in featuring full chapters on survey methods, evaluation, reliability, and validity, action research, and research syntheses. Pedagogical Features Include: An exemplar journal article at the end of each methods chapter together with questions and activities for critiquing it, including where applicable checklist forms to identify threats to internal and external validity, plus lists of additional research examples. Research example boxes showing how studies are designed to address particular research questions. In every chapter: numbered chapter objectives, bulleted summaries, subheadings written as questions, a running glossary, and end of chapter discussion questions. Electronic Instructor's Resource Manual with Test Bank provided separately includes chapter outlines, answers to exercises, discussion questions, and illustrative example questions and PowerPoints.
