The Beach in Anglophone Literatures and Cultures Ursula Kluwick, Virginia Richter, 2016-03-09 From early colonial encounters to the ecological disasters of the twenty first century the performativity of contact has been a crucial element in the political significance of the beach Conceptualising the beach as a creative trope and as a socio cultural site as well as an aesthetically productive topography this collection examines its multiplicity of meanings and functions as a natural environment engendering both desire and fear in the human imagination from the Victorian period to the present The contributors examine literature film and art in addition to moments of encounter and environmental crisis to highlight the beach as a social space inspiring particular codes of behaviour and specific discourses as a geographical frontier between land and water as an historical site of contact and conflict and as a vacationscape promising regeneration and withdrawal from everyday life The diversity of the beach is reflected in the geographical range with essays on locales and texts from

Britain Ireland the Caribbean South Africa the United States Polynesia and New Zealand Focusing on the changed function of the beach as a result of processes of industrialisation and the rise of a modern leisure and health culture this interdisciplinary volume theorises the beach as a demarcater of the precarious boundary between land and the sea as well as between nature and culture

The American Catalogue ,1891 Who One Is J.G. Hart,2009-04-21 Both volumes of this work have as their central concern to sort out who one is from what one is In this Book 1 the focus is on transcendental phenomenological ontology When we refer to ourselves we refer both non ascriptively in regard to non propertied as well as ascriptively in regard to propertied aspects of ourselves The latter is the richness of our personal being the former is the essentially elusive central concern of this Book 1 I can be aware of myself and refer to myself without it being necessary to think of any third personal characteristic indeed one may be aware of oneself without having to be aware of anything except oneself This consideration opens the door to basic issues in phenomenological ontology such as identity individuation and substance In our knowledge and love of Others we find symmetry with the first person self knowledge both in its non ascriptive forms as well as in its property ascribing forms Love properly has for its referent the Other as present through but beyond her properties Transcendental phenomenological reflections move us to consider paradoxes of the transcendental person For example we contend with the unpresentability in the transcendental first person of our beginning or ending and the undeniable evidence for the beginning and ending of persons in our third person experience The basic distinction between oneself as non sortal and as a person pervaded by properties serves as a hinge for reflecting on the afterlife This transcendental phenomenological ontology of necessity deals with some themes of the philosophy of religion

Contemporary, 1878      Suburban Space, the Novel and Australian Modernity Brigid Rooney, 2018-11-15 Suburban Space the Novel and Australian Modernity investigates the interaction between suburbs and suburbia in a century long series of Australian novels It puts the often trenchantly anti suburban rhetoric of fiction in dialogue with its evocative and imaginative rendering of suburban place and time Suburban Space the Novel and Australian Modernity rethinks existing cultural debates about suburbia in Australia and elsewhere by putting novelistic representations of suburbs suburban interiors homes streets forms and lives over time in dialogue with the often negative idea of suburbia in fiction as an amnesic and conformist cultural wasteland Suburban space the novel and Australian modernity shows in other words how Australian novels dramatize the collision between the sensory terrain of the remembered suburb and the cultural critique of suburbia It is through such contradictions that novels create resonant mental maps of place and time Australian novels are a prism through which suburbs as sites of everyday colonization defined by successive waves of urban development are able to be glimpsed sidelong
