Geological Survey Circular , Revista Mundial de Zootecnia , 1993 The missing woodland resources Marian Berihuete-Azorín, María Martín Seijo, Oriol López-Bultó, Raquel Piqué, 2022-02-05 Woodlands are a key source of raw materials for many purposes since early Prehistory Wood bark resin leaves fibers fungi

moss or tubers have been gathered to fulfill almost every human need That led societies to develop specific technologies to acquire manage transform elaborate use and consume these resources The materials provided by woodlands covered a wide range of necessities such as food shelter clothing or tool production but they also provided resources employed for waterproofing dying medicine and adhesives among many others All these technological processes and uses are commonly difficult to identify through the archaeological record Some materials are exclusively preserved by charring or in anaerobic conditions at very exceptional sites or leave only a very slight trace behind them e g containers Consequently they have received far less attention in archaeobotanical studies compared to other kind of plant materials consumed as food or firewood This book provides an overview of technological uses of plants from the Palaeolithic to the Post Medieval period This collection of papers presents different archaeobotanical and archaeological studies dealing with the use of a wide range of woodland resources most of them among the less visible for archaeology such as bast fibers and fungi These papers present different approaches for their study combining archaeology archaeobotany and ethnoarchaeology

Natural History of Vampire Bats Arthur M. Greenhall, 2018-05-04 A major problem with vampire bats is that whatever information exists is scattered throughout the literature or is not recorded There are some excellent books on the ecology and biology of bats with very little on vampire bats This volume fills that gap to provide an in depth presentation of these unique animals
