J. Dibua, 2015-12-04 This book deconstructs the neopatrimonial paradigm that has dominated analysis of Nigerian and African development It shows that by denying agency to Nigerian societies and devaluing indigenous culture and local realities Eurocentric diffusionism played a significant role in the failure of development planning

Privatization and Foreign

Investments in Nigeria Lawrence Okechukwu Azubuike, 2009 Nigeria s political economy has straddled the ideological divide between socialism and capitalism The country produces oil and at some point in its existence it embarked on robust state involvement in the economy This was marked by the acquisition or establishment of numerous state enterprises Over the years the performance of these enterprises was found to be dismal and as part of the overall reform of the economy Nigeria has joined the global trend toward reduction in direct state ownership of enterprises Indeed it has embarked on massive divestment of state interests in once publicly owned firms Besides the universal rationale of efficiency one of the objectives of the privatization exercise in Nigeria is the attraction and retention of foreign investments This work examines the direct and indirect linkage between the government's divestiture of its interests in firms on the one hand and foreign investments in the country on the other hand The book is divided into seven chapters Chapter 1 reviews the political and economic history of Nigeria to set the background and context that necessitated the introduction of the reform package of which privatization is just an aspect Chapter 2 is a discussion of various natures of state involvement in an economy This ranges from mere regulation to active participation The chapter discusses the competing conceptual and ideological theories and tries to situate the Nigerian experience within the broader conceptual dichotomies of capitalism socialism and the via media of mixed economy Chapter 3 is an examination of the meaning and rationales for privatization of state owned enterprises generally and the Nigerian attempts in particular Nigeria's privatization program is an ongoing exercise Yet two distinct attempts are identifiable one which started in 1988 and the reinvigoration of the exercise albeit with new constitutive frameworks in 1999 Thus Chapters 4 and 5 review the legal and institutional frameworks for these two exercises Chapter 6 deals with foreign investments in Nigeria The discussion encapsulates the pros and cons of foreign investments especially in Nigeria Chapter 7 explores the direct and indirect linkages between the privatization program in Nigeria and foreign investments in the country This is particularly apposite because one of the touted objectives of the privatization exercise is the attraction of foreign investments A conclusion follows The work finds that although foreign investments appear to have been indirectly boosted by the privatization exercise foreign investors initially did not show interest in direct acquisition of the shares and other interests being relinquished by the government but that that attitude has been changing gradually

The Role of International Business Operations and the Impact of the Political Environment in Nigeria: A Conceptual Framework Study based on the Banking and Oil Industries Olufemi A. Akintunde, 2008-09-28 The Impact of Oil on a Developing Country Augustin Ikein, 1990-12-11 This study provides a comprehensive and balanced analysis of the impact of the oil industry on a particular developing country Nigeria over a period of 32 years Ikein uses a multidimensional approach that enables him to identify the linkage between the performance of the oil industry and the pattern of Nigeria's national and regional development Through an in depth examination of the various socioeconomic factors thought to influence the social well being of a group of people he explores whether and how the Nigerian people have been helped by the supposed benefits of oil on their economy challenging those who see benefits in purely economic terms

African Feminism Gwendolyn Mikell, 1997 This book is the best thing I've seen on the question not only of feminism in its African articulation but also more generally on the question of how feminism emerges and what it means to those who espouse it Joan Scott Institute for Advanced Study Princeton The Paradox of Plenty Terry Lynn Karl, 1997-10-10 The Paradox of Plenty explains why in the midst of two massive oil booms in the 1970s oil exporting governments as different as

Venezuela Iran Nigeria Algeria and Indonesia chose common development paths and suffered similarly disappointing outcomes Meticulously documented and theoretically innovative this book illuminates the manifold factors economic political and social that determine the nature of the oil state from the coherence of public bureaucracies to the degree of centralization to patterns of policy making Karl contends that oil countries while seemingly disparate are characterized by similar social classes and patterns of collective action In these countries dependence on petroleum leads to disproportionate fiscal reliance on petrodollars and public spending at the expense of statecraft Oil booms which create the illusion of prosperity and development actually destabilize regimes by reinforcing oil based interests and further weakening state capacity Karl s incisive investigation unites structural and choice based approaches by illuminating how decisions of policymakers are embedded in institutions interacting with domestic and international markets This approach which Karl dubs structured contingency uses a state s leading sector as the starting point for identifying a range of decision making choices and ends by examining the dynamics of the state itself

Christian Churches and Nigeria's Political Economy of Oil and Conflict Nkem Emerald Osuigwe,2014-09-18 The received account on African evangelical Christianity regarding social witness in a section of Western scholarship is that it is anti development and a political Such an account heavily draws from an instrumentalist and functionalist assessment of such Christianity without recourse to its emic perspective Using the case study method this book presents an ethnographic examination of this functionalist reading by investigating describing and analysing evangelical Christian theological and socio political consciousness within the context of oil and conflict in Nigeria's Niger Delta region. Adopting approaches from practical theology, congregational studies, and anthropology of religion, the author challenges such a reading using data gathered from three congregations in the region. His discourse revolves around answers to the following four critical questions: What are the underlying theological issues and beliefs of Nigerian evangelical Christians within the context of oil and conflict? What is their prevalent praxis within the context of Nigeria's political economy of oil and conflict? How accurate is the received account that African evangelical and fundamentalist Christianity lacks social responsibility and is a political and anti-development? What would a contextual political theology for Nigeria's political economy of oil look like? The theological issues are varied and the prevalent praxis nuanced, which then serves as a veritable critique of the claim that African evangelical Christianity lacks social responsibility due to its preoccupation with soul-winning. Whereas such Christianity places much emphasis on the winning of souls as an expression of its spirituality, it is neither oblivious nor indifferent to its socio-political milieu. Rather, it sees such spirituality as a form of political praxis. Some of the trajectories of the spirituality include a theology of conversion, a theology of prayer, and an ethics of crude oil with Total Freedom as the nomenclature for the specific theological perspective offered for Nigeria's political economy of oil. While locating this theological perspective within the taxonomy of Liberation Theology, the affinity and dissonance between the two are identified.

The Magical State Fernando Coronil, 1997-11-10. In 1935, after the death of dictator General Juan Vicente Gómez, Venezuela consolidated its position as the world's major oil exporter and began to establish what today is South America's longest-lasting democratic regime. Endowed with the power of state oil wealth, successive presidents appeared as transcendent figures who could magically transform Venezuela into a modern nation. During the 1974-78 oil boom, dazzling development projects promised finally to effect this transformation. Yet now the state must struggle to appease its foreign creditors, counter a declining economy, and contain a discontented citizenry. In critical dialogue with contemporary social theory, Fernando Coronil examines key transformations in Venezuela's polity, culture, and economy, recasting theories of development and highlighting the relevance of these processes for other postcolonial nations. The result is a timely and compelling historical ethnography of political power at the cutting edge of interdisciplinary reflections on modernity and the state.

Hausa Women in the Twentieth Century Catherine M. Coles, Beverly Mack, 1991-10-01. The Hausa are one of the largest ethnic groups in Africa, with populations in Nigeria, Niger, and Ghana. Their long history of city states and Islamic caliphates, their complex trading economies, and their cultural traditions have attracted the attention of historians, political economists, linguists, and anthropologists. The large body of scholarship on Hausa society, however, has assumed the subordination of women to men. Hausa Women in the Twentieth Century refutes the notion that Hausa women are pawns in a patriarchal Muslim society. The contributors, all of whom have done field research in Hausaland, explore the ways Hausa women have balanced the demands of Islamic expectations and Western choices as their society moved from a precolonial system through British colonial administration to inclusion in the modern Nigerian nation This volume examines the roles of a wide variety of women from wives and workers to political activists and mythical figures and it emphasizes that women have been educators and spiritual leaders in Hausa society since precolonial times From royalty to slaves and concubines in traditional Hausa cities and in newer towns from the urban poor to the newly educated elite the invisible women whose lives are documented here demonstrate that standard accounts of Hausa society must be revised Scholars of Hausa and neighboring West African societies will find in this collection a wealth of new material and a model of how research on women can be integrated with general accounts of Hausa social religious political and economic life For students and scholars looking at gender and women s roles cross culturally this volume provides an invaluable African perspective
