Mercantile Library Association of Brooklyn,1878 Slave-Wives, Single Women and "Bastards" in the Ancient Greek World Morris Silver,2018-01-31 Greek scholars have produced a vast body of evidence bearing on nuptial practices that has yet to be mined by a professional economist By standing on their shoulders the author proposes and tests radically new interpretations of three important status groups in Greek history the pallak the nothos and the hetaira It is argued that legitimate marriage marriage by loan of the bride to the groom was not the only form of legal marriage in classical Athens and the ancient Greek world generally Pallakia marriage by sale of the bride to the groom was also legally recognized The pallak wifeship transaction is a sale into slavery with a restrictive covenant mandating the employment of the sold woman as a wife In this highly original and challenging new book economist Morris Silver proposes and tests the hypothesis that the likelihood of bride sale rises with increases in the distance between the ancestral residence of the groom and the father s household Nothoi the bastard children of pallakai lacked the legal right to inherit from their fathers but were routinely eligible for Athenian citizenship It is argued that the basic social meaning of hetaira companion is not prostitute or courtesan but single woman a woman legally recognized as being under her own authority kuria The defensive adaptation of single women is reflected in Greek myth and social practice by their grouping into packs most famously the Daniads and Amazons

Ward,1995 Virtually ignored for a century the painting of James Ward are at last being re evaluated and we are again discovering the charm and skill of one of Britain s foremost animal painters From a harsh boyhood spent among the crowded tenements and Thames side wharves of George III s London Ward became first an engraver of the highest rank and then a painter and Royal Academician with a thriving practice among the aristocracy Although tending to specialize in horses prize livestock and other animals Ward was a notable landscape and portrait painter and his draughtsmanship was superb Perhaps best known for his large romantic version of Gordale Scar in the Tate Gallery his work also included a vast allegorical painting of the Triumph of Waterloo ill received by the public and since lost This well researched biography brings Ward's whole oeuvre into the context of his long life and brings a new dimension to our view of this neglected yet highly talented artist
