arrived at Christ Church bringing with him his young family all of whom would figure largely in Dodgson's life over the following years and would greatly influence his writing career Dodgson became close friends with Liddell's wife Lorina and their children particularly the three sisters Lorina Edith and Alice Liddell He was widely assumed for many years to have derived his own Alice from Alice Liddell the acrostic poem at the end of Through the Looking Glass spells out her name in full and there are also many superficial references to her hidden in the text of both books It has been noted that Dodgson himself repeatedly denied in later life that his little heroine was based on any real child and he frequently dedicated his works to girls of his acquaintance adding their names in acrostic poems at the beginning of the text Gertrude Chataway's name appears in this form at the beginning of The Hunting of the Snark and it is not suggested that this means that any of the characters in the narrative are based on her
