Philosophical Mechanics in the Age of Reason Katherine Brading, Marius Stan, 2024-02-27 From pebbles to planets tigers to tables pine trees to people animate and inanimate natural and artificial bodies are everywhere Bodies populate the world acting and interacting with one another and they are the subject matter of Newton's laws of motion But what is a body And how can we know how they behave In Philosophical Mechanics in the Age of Reason Katherine Brading and Marius Stan examine the struggle for a theory of bodies At the beginning of the 18th century physics was the branch of philosophy that studied bodies in general Its primary task was to provide a qualitative account of the nature of bodies including their essential properties causal powers and generic behaviors Pursued by a variety of figures both canonical from Leibniz to Kant and less familiar from Du Châtelet and Euler to d'Alembert and Lagrange this proved a difficult task At stake were the appropriate epistemologies and methods for theorizing about the natural world Solutions demanded the combined resources of philosophy physics and mechanics what Brading and Stan call a philosophical mechanics Brading and Stan analyze a century of widespread concerted efforts to solve the problem of bodies they examine the consequences of the many failures both for the problem itself and for philosophy more generally They reveal relationships among disparate themes of 18th century physics and philosophy from the nature of matter to the motion of a vibrating string causation to the principle of least action and the role of subtle matter in collision theory to analytic mechanics All of these Brading and Stan argue are related to the eventual emergence of physics as an independent discipline autonomous from philosophy more than a century after Newton's Principia This book provides a new framing of natural philosophy and its transformations in the Enlightenment and it proposes an account of how physics and philosophy evolved into distinct fields of inquiry
