Abstract

Radical reflection is the philosophical and scientific exercise in answering the original question of human sciences. Starting from his criticism of scientific objectivism, Calvin O. Schrag points out his thesis that by radicalization of knowledge and values in human experiences, human sciences can develop its own rationality which couples with the technical methodological reason. This article will delve with Schrag's concept of radical reflection in human sciences in three sections: the first section is dealing with Schrag's appreciation of Husserl's critique of the ideals of objectivism, the second discusses the development of radical reflection, and the third focuses on the ontological implication of radical reflection that it guides us to understand of daily life experiences. The article concludes that since radical reflection focuses on the original experience, its rationality must be counted on by its technical methodological reason and the metaphorical reason.

1 Introduction

Human sciences today comprise a vacillating Tower of Babel. At the peak of this tower, every field of human sciences speaks with its own language, "producing a virtual breakdown of communication not only among the several human sciences themselves but also within the republic of human knowledge more generally" (Schrag 1980: ix). Thus stated Calvin O. Schrag in his preface of the book entitled Radical Reflection and the Origin of the Human Sciences.

Most of Schrag's anxieties are not only based on the various species of psychologism in psychology, historicism in history, and sociologism in sociology but also basically because there is no conceptual unity regarding humans as the common contribution toward a scientific knowledge of man. Quoting Ernst Cassirer, he writes: "Psychology, ethnology, anthropology, and history have amassed an astoundingly rich and constantly increasing body of facts ... but our wealth of facts is not necessarily

Methodology for the Human

Sciences Donald E. Polkinghorne, 1984-06-30 Methodology for the Human Sciences addresses the growing need for a comprehensive textbook that surveys the emerging body of literature on human science research and clearly describes procedures and methods for carrying out new research strategies. It provides an overview of developing methods, describes their commonalities and variations, and contains practical information on how to implement strategies in the field. In it, Donald Polkinghorne calls for a renewal of debate over which methods are appropriate for the study of human beings, proposing that the results of the extensive changes in the philosophy of science since 1960 call for a reexamination of the original issues of this debate. The book traces the history of the deliberations from Mill and Dilthey to Hempel and logical positivism, examines recently developed systems of inquiry and their importance for the human sciences, and relates these systems to the practical problems of doing research on topics related to human experience. It discusses historical realism systems and structures, phenomenology and hermeneutics, action theory, and the implications recent systems have for a revised human science methodology.

Reflections on the Religious, the Ethical, and the Political Calvin O. Schrag, 2013-01-01 Reflections on the Religious, the Ethical, and the Political presents fourteen essays devoted to the interconnected topics of religion, ethics, and politics, along with an introductory interview with the author regarding his philosophical development over the years. This volume serves two interconnected purposes: as an introduction or reintroduction to Calvin O. Schrag's intellectual contributions to a critical consideration of these three topics, and as a critical companion and supplement to Schrag's published work on these topics. The topics of religion, ethics, and politics have served as pivot points throughout Schrag's career in the academy, which spans half a century.

Philosophical Papers Calvin O. Schrag, 1994-03-08 Philosophical Papers is useful for readers interested in the story of twentieth-century continental philosophy. The book leads the reader throughout the shifts and turns in the often serpentine development of the philosophical perspectives within continental thought that have now become the legacy of our time. The author carries on a conversation which at times congeals into a confrontation with the principal proponents of the various philosophical persuasions. They include Husserl, Heidegger, Sartre, Merleau-Ponty, Levi-Strauss, Foucault, Ricoeur, Gadamer, Habermas, Derrida, Deleuze, and Lyotard. Insofar as three nineteenth-century philosophers, in particular Marx, Kierkegaard, and Nietzsche, figured so decisively in the shaping of twentieth-century continental thought, they too become part of the wider story being told. The concluding essays in the volume display the most recent efforts of the author to come to grips with the consequences of rationality between the universal claims of reason in modernity and the particular heterogeneous and local narratives of power and desire in postmodernity. The location of rationality between and between the modern and the postmodern provides a space for a dynamics of transversal rationality oriented toward a convergence without coincidence, both in the life of thought and the life of action.

Selfhood and Authenticity Corey Anton, 2001-02-22 Explores the notion of selfhood in the wake of the post-structuralist debates.

Why Do We Go to the Zoo? Erik A. Garrett, 2013-12-05 Despite hundreds of millions of visitors each year zoos have remained outside of the realm of philosophical analysis This lack of theoretical examination is interesting considering the paradoxical position within which a zoo is situated being a space of animal confinement as well as a site that provides valuable tools for species conservation public education and entertainment Why Do We Go to the Zoo argues that the zoo is a legitimate space of academic inquiry The modes of communication taking place at the zoo that keep drawing us back time and time again beg for a careful investigation In this book the meaning of the zoo as communicative space is explored This book relies on the phenomenological method from Edmund Husserl and a rhetorical approach to examine the interaction between people and animals in the zoo space Phenomenology the philosophy of examining the engaged everyday lived experience is a natural method to use in the project Despite its rich history and tradition it is interesting that there are very few books explaining how to do phenomenology Why Do We Go to the Zoo provides a detailed account of how to actually conduct a phenomenological analysis The author spent thousands of hours in zoos watching people and animals interact as well as talking with people both formally and informally This book asks readers to bracket their preconceptions of what goes on in the zoo and instead to explore the meaning of powerful zoo experiences while reminding us of the troubled history of zoos

Husserl's Criticism of Reason Kenneth Liberman, 2007-01-01 A phenomenological inquiry into the benefits and limitations of formal analytic reasoning is developed in reliance upon the criticism of reason by Husserl and his students which is respecified ethnomethodologically by examining occasions of philosophers work in its actual course Liberman engages in a dialogue and debate with Husserl Heidegger Levinas Merleau Ponty and Derrida for the purpose of adding an ethnomethodological vision of the orderliness of ordinary philosophical affairs to the philosophical anthropology of reason
