The Media Student's Guide to

Radio Production Bob Gilmurray, 2013-02-01 This book is written for students enrolled on media production courses in further and higher education which include modules in radio broadcasting It is particularly well suited to students in the United Kingdom who are taking BTEC Nationals and Higher Nationals or OCR Nationals or similar post school vocational media programmes That said this book contains much that radio trainers and trainees outside the context of mainstream education and even of the UK will also find helpful The rules and conventions may vary but the skills required to do the job are much the same everywhere The emphasis is upon the practical issues that arise when you the student are experiencing for the first time the challenge of working as a member of a team to launch and run a broadcast or internet radio station and you are being assessed on how well you do The efficiency of radio production at the BBC Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2009-06-04 The BBC in 2007/08 spent 462 million on its 16 radio stations The BBC has set these 16 stations a combined target of efficiency savings of 69 million over the five year period to March 2013 representing an annual saving of 3 per cent The BBC proposed unacceptable constraints on the Comptroller and Auditor General's access to information and his discretion to report to his findings to Parliament The situation arose because the Comptroller and Auditor General does not have statutory unrestricted rights of access to the BBC which he does with all other publicly funded bodies The BBC has wide ranges of costs for similar programmes within and between its radio stations The average cost for an hour of comparable music programmes on Radio 2 is more than 50 per cent higher than on Radio 1 For most breakfast and drivetime slots the BBC's costs are significantly higher than commercial stations largely because of payments to presenters The BBC has not used cost comparisons across its own programmes or against commercial radio to identify scope for efficiencies The BBC uses its principal value for money indicator cost per listener hour to justify the cost of presenters on the basis of audience size but the indicator does not provide assurance that programme costs are the minimum necessary to reach the required quality and intended audience For most radio programmes presenters' salaries represent the majority of programming costs but the BBC is paying more than the market price for its top radio presenters The BBC has prevented full public scrutiny of the value for money of expenditure on presenters by agreeing confidentiality clauses with some presenters Making Radio Shawn VanCour, 2018-03-01 The opening decades of the twentieth century witnessed a profound transformation in the history of modern sound media with workers in U S film radio and record industries developing pioneering production methods and performance styles tailored to emerging technologies of electric sound reproduction that would redefine dominant forms and experiences of popular audio entertainment Focusing on broadcasting's initial expansion during the 1920s Making Radio explores the forms of creative labor pursued for the medium in the period prior to the better known network era assessing their role in shaping radio's identity and identifying affinities with parallel practices pursued for conversion era film and phonography Tracing programming forms adopted by early radio writers and programmers production techniques developed by studio engineers and performance styles cultivated by on air talent it
