Modest Nonconceptualism Eva Schmidt, 2015-07-06 The author defends nonconceptualism the claim that perceptual experience is nonconceptual and has nonconceptual content Continuing the heated and complex debate surrounding this topic over the past two decades she offers a sustained defense of a novel version of the view Modest Nonconceptualism and provides a systematic overview of some of the central controversies in the debate An explication of the notion of nonconceptual content and a distinction between nonconceptualist views of different strengths starts off the volume then the author goes on to defend participants in the debate over nonconceptual content against the allegation that their failure to distinguish between a state view and a content view of nonconceptualism leads to fatal problems for their views Next she makes a case for nonconceptualism by refining some of the central arguments for the view such as the arguments from fineness of grain from contradictory contents from animal and infant perception and from concept acquisition Then two central objections against nonconceptualism are rebutted in a novel way the epistemological objection and the objection from objectivity Modest Nonconceptualism allows for perceptual experiences to involve some conceptual elements It emphasizes the relevance of concept employment for an understanding of conceptual and nonconceptual mental states and identifies the nonconceptual content of experience with scenario content It insists on the possibility of genuine content bearing perceptual experience without concept possession and is thus in line with the Autonomy Thesis Finally it includes an account of perceptual justification that relies on the external contents of experience and belief yet is compatible with epistemological internalism
