Look to the North Star Victor Ullman, 1969 More than a century ago one man with deep convictions and a country with benign ideals combined to create a place where black self emancipation black freedom could flourish The man was William King a slaveowner and Presbyterian minister educated to the stern moralities of Edinburgh The country was Canada and Look to the North Star is a vivid account of Buxton the community in western Ontario which the Reverend Mr King and his slaves founded in 1849 as a haven for black fugitives both slave and free in the harsh years before the Civil War Jacket

Look to the North Star Victor Ullman, 1994 Fugitive Slaves and Spaces of Freedom in North America Damian Alan Pargas, 2020-09-08 This volume introduces a new way to study the experiences of runaway slaves by defining different spaces of freedom they inhabited It also provides a groundbreaking continental view of fugitive slave migration moving beyond the usual regional or national approaches to explore locations in Canada the U S North and South Mexico and the Caribbean Using newspapers advertisements and new demographic data contributors show how events like the Revolutionary War and westward expansion shaped the slave experience Contributors investigate sites of formal freedom where slavery was abolished and refugees were legally free to determine the extent to which fugitive slaves experienced freedom in places like Canada while still being subject to racism In sites of semiformal freedom as in the northern United States fugitives claims to freedom were precarious because state abolition laws conflicted with federal fugitive slave laws Contributors show how local committees strategized to interfere with the work of slave catchers to protect refugees Sites of informal freedom were created within the slaveholding South where runaways who felt relocating to distant destinations was too risky formed maroon communities or attempted to blend in with free black populations These individuals procured false documents or changed their names to avoid detection and pass as free The essays discuss slaves motivations for choosing these destinations the social networks that supported their plans what it was like to settle in their new societies and how slave flight impacted broader debates about slavery This volume redraws the map of escape and emancipation during this period emphasizing the importance of place in defining the meaning and extent of freedom Contributors Kyle Ainsworth Mekala Audain Gordon S Barker Sylviane A Diouf Roy E Finkenbine Graham Russell Gao Hodges Jeffrey R Kerr Ritchie Viola Franziska M ller James David Nichols Damian Alan Pargas Matthew Pinsker A volume in the series Southern Dissent edited by Stanley Harrold and Randall M Miller The Houses of Buxton Patricia Lorraine Neely, 2005 The Queen's Bush Settlement Linda Brown-Kubisch, 2004-02-20 The Black pioneers 1839 1865 who cleared the land and established the Queen's Bush settlement in that section of unsurveyed land where present day Waterloo and Wellington counties meet near Hawkesville are the focus of this extensively researched book Linda Brown Kubisch's attention to detail and commitment to these long neglected settlers re-establishes their place in Ontario history Set in the context of the early migration of Blacks into Upper Canada this work is a must for historians and for genealogists involved in tracing family connections with these
