Roberson, 2012-07-26 A study of American women s narratives of mobility and travel this book examines how geographic movement opened up other movements or mobilities for antebellum women at a time of great national expansion Concerned with issues of personal and national identity the study demonstrates how women not only went out on the open road but participated in public discussions of nationhood in the texts they wrote Roberson examines a variety of narratives and subjects including not only traditional travel narratives of voyages to the West or to foreign locales but also the ways travel and movement figured in autobiography spiritual and political narratives and domestic novels by women as they constructed their own politics of mobility These narratives by such women as Margaret Fuller Susan Warner and Harriet Beecher Stowe destabilize the male dominated stories of American travel and nation building as women claimed the public road as a domain in which they belonged bringing with them their own ideas about mobility self and nation The many women s stories of mobility also destabilize a singular view of women s history and broaden our outlook on geographic movement and its repercussions for other movements Looking at texts not usually labeled travel writing like the domestic novel brings to light social relations enacted on the road and the relation between story location and mobility Orchestrating Public Opinion Paul Christiansen, 2025-10-01 Analysis of political advertising tends to give music short shrift which flies in the face of what we know about the power of music to set a mood affect feelings and influence our perceptions This book is the first to offer a detailed exploration of the role of music in US presidential campaign advertising from Eisenhower to the present showing that in many cases music isn t simply one element in the presentation of an ad s message it s the dominant factor more important than images words or narration The Fiction of Our Lives Sandra M.
