Experimental Evaluation of the Radiation Protection Afforded by Residential Structures Against Distributed Sources John A. Auxier, 1959 A study was made to obtain information that could be used to evaluate the protection afforded by residences against radiation due to fallout The sources used were Co60 and Cs137 and the radiation dosimeters used were pocket type ionization chambers Measurements were made for distributed sources 400 Co60 and 20 Cs037 and for single sources located inside the structures one each 2 curie Co60 and Cs137 Attenuation measurements were made for five houses of typical domestic design and construction Several modifications were made to the houses and the attenuation measurements were repeated The houses located at the Nevada Test Site included single and two story houses with and without basements and with light and heavy walls For comparison with the house data the dose rate distribution above an extended plane source was measured in a phantom house i e air measurements with the instrument fixed on a framework of thin walled aluminum tubing Although the complete analysis of the data is not yet available some typical analyses are presented and the effectiveness of some of the modifications is illustrated Phantom Dwelling Judith Wright, 1985 Atomic Dwelling Robin Schuldenfrei, 2012-08-21 In the years of reconstruction and economic boom that followed the Second World War the domestic sphere encountered new expectations regarding social behaviour modes of living and forms of dwelling This book brings together an international group of scholars from architecture design urban planning and interior design to reappraise mid twentieth century modern life offering a timely reassessment of culture and the economic and political effects on civilian life This collection contains essays that examine the material of art objects and spaces in the context of practices of dwelling over the long span of the postwar period It asks what role material objects interior spaces and architecture played in quelling or fanning the anxieties of modernism s ordinary denizens and how this role informs their legacy today Judith Wright and Emily Carr Anne Collett, Dorothy Jones, 2021-01-28 Knitting together two fascinating but entirely distinct lives this ingeniously structured braided biography tells the story of the lives and work of two women each a cultural icon in her own country yet lesser known in the other s Australian poet Judith Wright and Canadian painter Emily Carr broke new ground for female artists in the British colonies and influenced the political and social debates about environment and indigenous rights that have shaped Australia and Canada in the 21st century In telling their story ies this book charts the battle for recognition of their modernist art and vision pointing out significant moments of similarity in their lives and work Although separated by thousands of miles their experience of colonial modernity was startlingly analogous as white settler women bent on forging artistic careers in a male dominated world and sphere rigged against them Through all this though their cultural importance endures two remarkable women whose poetry and painting still speak to us today of their passionate belief in the transformative power of art With Love & Fury Judith Wright, 2006 This wide range of letters reminds us of Judith Wright s deep engagement with life her love of the world and of friends and the fine fury that led her to battle so courageously on the world's behalf

An Archaeology of Resistance Alfredo González-Ruibal, 2014-03-27 An Archaeology of Resistance Materiality and Time in an African Borderland studies the tactics of resistance deployed by a variety of indigenous communities in the borderland between Sudan and Ethiopia The Horn of Africa is an early area of state formation and at the same time the home of many egalitarian small scale societies which have lived in the buffer zone between states for the last three thousand years For this reason resistance is not something added to their sociopolitical structures it is an inherent part of those structures a mode of being The main objective of the work is to understand the diverse forms of resistance that characterizes the borderland groups with an emphasis on two essentially archaeological themes materiality and time by combining archaeological political and social theory ethnographic methods and historical data to examine different processes of resistance in the long term

Trauma and Romance in Contemporary British Literature Jean-Michel Ganteau, Susana Onega, 2013-01-17 Drawing on a variety of theoretical approaches including trauma theory psychoanalysis genre theory narrative theory theories of temporality cultural theory and ethics this book breaks new ground in bringing together trauma and romance two categories whose collaboration has never been addressed in such a systematic and in depth way The volume shows how romance strategies have become an essential component of trauma fiction in general and traumatic realism in particular It brings to the fore the deconstructive powers of the darker type of romance and its adequacy to perform traumatic acting out and fragmentation It also zooms in on the variations on the ghost story as medium for the evocation of trans generational trauma as well as on the therapeutic drive of romance that favors a narrative presentation of the working through phase of trauma Chapters explore various acceptations and extensions of psychic trauma from the individual to the cultural analyzing narrative texts that belong in various genres from the ghost story to the misery memoir to the graphic novel The selection of primary sources allows for a review of leading contemporary British authors such as Peter Ackroyd Martin Amis Ian McEwan Salman Rushdie Graham Swift Sarah Waters and Jeanette Winterson and of those less canonical such as Jackie Kay Alan Moore and Dave Gibbons Justine Picardie Peter Roche and Adam Thorpe

Devonshire Folk Tales Michael Dacre, 2011-09-16 This collection of traditional stories and tales many of which are published for the first time will delight lovers of Devonshire folklore Some of the stories have been gleaned from residents of the county whilst others have been developed by the author and have evolved through countless tellings All the tales within represent this large and diverse county throughout its long and distinguished history from the founding of Britain itself by Brutus the Trojan at Totnes to recent reports of haunted roads and phantom hairy hands Also included are giants devils witches ghosts fairies spectral black dogs and a wide range of other supernatural phenomena all exemplifying the vigorous and earthy nature of the Devon imagination down through the ages It is a book of wonders to terrify and intrigue and leads the reader around this beautiful and fascinating county
