Tiger Check Steven A. Fino, 2017-11-01 How did American fighter pilots respond to the challenges posed by increasing automation Spurred by their commanders during the Korean War to be tigers aggressive and tenacious American fighter pilots charged headlong into packs of fireball spewing enemy MiGs relying on their keen eyesight piloting finesse and steady trigger fingers to achieve victory But by the 1980s American fighter pilots vanquished their foes by focusing on a four inch square cockpit display manipulating electromagnetic waves and launching rocket propelled guided missiles from miles away In this new era of automated long range air combat can fighter pilots still be considered tigers Aimed at scholars of technology and airpower aficionados alike Steven A Fino s Tiger Check offers a detailed study of air to air combat focusing on three of the US Air Force s most famed aircraft the F 86E Sabre the F 4C Phantom II and the F 15A Eagle Fino argues that increasing fire control automation altered what fighter pilots actually did during air to air combat Drawing on an array of sources as well as his own decade of experience as an F 15C fighter pilot Fino unpacks not just the technological black box of fighter fire control equipment but also fighter pilots attitudes toward their profession and their evolving aircraft He describes how pilots grappled with the new technologies acutely aware that the very systems that promised to simplify their jobs while increasing their lethality in the air also threatened to rob them of the quintessential albeit mythic fighter pilot experience Finally Fino explains that these new systems often required new unique skills that took time for the pilots to identify and then develop Eschewing the typical great machine or great pilot perspectives that dominate aviation historiography Tiger Check provides a richer perspective on humans and machines working and evolving together in the air The book illuminates the complex interactions between human and machine that accompany advancing automation in the workplace above the Ho Chi Minh Trail On his first close air support mission in support of ground troops the majority of his Marine aviation missions he witnessed tracers whiz by his canopy On one harrowing sortie he and his pilot purposely became the target to save an Army unit battling an enemy just a hundred feet away On secret missions with secret weapons they dove at anti aircraft artillery muzzle flashes and flew as low as fifty feet off the deck during close air support sorties scraping the napalm off their plane For one mission a friend survived a crash landing but a training instructor vanished without a trace

Gradual failure : the air war over North Vietnam 1965-1966 Jacob Van Staaveren, 2002 Of the many facets of the American war in Southeast Asia debated by U S authorities in Washington by the military services and the public none has proved more controversial than the air war against North Vietnam The air war's inauguration with the nickname Rolling Thunder followed an eleven year American effort to induce communist North Vietnam to sign a peace treaty without openly attacking its territory Thus Rolling Thunder was a new military program in what had been a relatively low key attempt by the United States to win the war within South Vietnam against insurgent communist Viet Cong forces aided and abetted by the north The present volume covers the first phase of the Rolling Thunder campaign from March 1965 to late 1966 It begins with a description of the planning and execution of two initial limited air strikes nicknamed Flaming Dart I and II The Flaming Dart strikes were carried out against North Vietnam in February 1965 as the precursors to a regular albeit limited Rolling Thunder air program launched the following month Before proceeding with an account of Rolling Thunder its roots are traced in the events that compelled the United States to adopt an anti communist containment policy in Southeast Asia after the defeat of French forces by the communist Vietnamese in May 1954

Sparks Over Vietnam Gilles Van Nederveen,2000 This study underscores the important use of electronic intelligence and jamming as an electronic countermeasure Three decades ago the USAF faced a North Vietnamese electronic air defense threat about which little was known Through some extraordinary efforts the USAF ably countered that threat employing an obsolete aircraft the EB 66 only refitted and upgraded for mid 1960s missions Since the aircraft was at the end of its projected lifecycle and a new jammer was on the drawing board the air staff would not fund additional EB 66 modifications and maintenance requirements Parallels are easy to draw with today's jammers as essentially the same situation exists with the EA 6B The number of EB 66 aircraft during the Vietnam War was inadequate to meet both operational and training requirements Thus crews were trained on the job often during combat operations and the boneyard at Davis Monthan was often the site of scavenger hunts for repair parts needed to keep the aircraft aloft The advent of the Pueblo crisis created an additional demand for the EB 66 forcing a partial redeployment of the fleet from Thailand to Korea Training assets were also flown from Shaw to Germany during the same period to monitor the escalating air defense threat in the Warsaw Pact nations Missions and employment doctrine had to change to match electronic counters by adversaries from all directions
