of momentous changes but the 12th of June found the usual gay scene at the great institution overlooking the Hudson The President of the Republic his Secretary of War and many other distinguished guests were there to do honor to the occasion together with friends relatives and admirers of the young men who were being sent out to the ultimate leadership of the Nation s Army The scene had all the usual charm of West Point graduations and the usual intoxicating atmosphere of military display

Philip Dru Edward M. House,2015-05 Philip Dru from Edward M House Powerful American diplomat politician and presidential advisor 1858 1938 Made In Texas Michael Lind,2009-04-28 Everyone knows that President George W Bush is from Texas But few of us know the role his home state plays in his presidency and in our country In this dual biography of man and state Michael Lind confronts the chief crises of Bush s presidency the economy the Middle East and religious fundamentalism and traces their roots back to Texas a state Lind argues that yields salient clues to the future course of our country Widely praised as an iconoclastic and brilliant political observer Lind a fifth generation Texan chronicles the ethnic clash that produced modern Texas the well known plundering of the state s natural resources at the hands of its elites and finally the deep strain of Old Testament religiosity which having originated in Texas now reaches all over the globe in the form of Bush s foreign policy In the tradition of Gary Wills s Reagan s America Made in Texas provides a wholly original cultural history that should change the way we understand not just our president but our country

Philip Dru Edward Mandell House,2020-06-18 In the year 1920 the student and the statesman saw many indications that the social financial and industrial troubles that had vexed the United States of America for so long a time were about to culminate in civil war Wealth had grown so strong that the few were about to strangle the many and among the great masses of the people there was sullen and rebellious discontent The laborer in the cities the producer on the farm the merchant the professional man and all save organized capital and its satellites saw a gloomy and hopeless future With these conditions prevailing the graduation exercises of the class of 1920 of the National Military Academy at West Point held for many a foreboding promise of momentous changes but the 12th of June found the usual gay scene at the great institution overlooking the Hudson The President of the Republic his Secretary of War and many other distinguished guests were there to do honor to the occasion together with friends relatives and admirers of the young men who were being sent out to the ultimate leadership of the Nation s Army The scene had all the usual charm of West Point graduations and the usual intoxicating atmosphere of military display There was among the young graduating soldiers one who seemed depressed and out of touch with the triumphant blare of militarism for he alone of his fellow classmen had there no kith nor kin to bid him God speed in his new career Standing apart under the broad shadow of an oak he looked out over long stretches of forest and river but what he saw was his home in distant Kentucky the old farmhouse that the sun and the rain and the lichens had softened into a mottled gray He saw the gleaming brook that wound its way through the tangle of orchard and garden and parted the distant blue grass meadow He saw his aged mother sitting under the honeysuckle trellis book in hand but thinking he knew of him And then there was the perfume of the flowers the droning of the bees in the warm sweet air and the drowsy hound at his father s feet But this was not all the young man saw for Philip Dru in spite of his military training was a close student of the affairs of his country and he saw that which raised grave doubts in his mind as to the outcome of his career He saw many of the civil institutions of his country debased by the power of wealth under the thin guise of the constitutional protection of property He saw the Army which he had sworn to serve faithfully becoming prostituted by this same power and used at times for purposes of intimidation and petty conquests where the interests of wealth were at stake He saw the great city where luxury dominant and defiant existed largely by grace of exploitation exploitation of men women and children The young man s eyes had become bright and hard when his day dream was interrupted and he was looking into the gray blue eyes of Gloria Strawn the one whose lot he had been comparing to that of her sisters in the city in the mills the sweatshops the big stores and the streets He had met her for the first time a few hours before when his friend and classmate Jack Strawn had presented him to his sister No comrade knew Dru better than Strawn and no one admired him so much Therefore Gloria ever seeking a closer contact with life had come to West Point eager to meet the lithe young Kentuckian and to measure him by the other men of her acquaintance

1913 Charles Emmerson, 2013-05-07 Today 1913 is inevitably viewed through the lens of 1914 as the last year before a war that would shatter the global economic order and tear Europe apart undermining its global pre eminence Our perspectives narrowed by hindsight the world of that year is reduced to its most frivolous features last summers in grand aristocratic residences or its most destructive ones the unresolved rivalries of the great European powers the fear of revolution violence in the Balkans In this illuminating history Charles Emmerson liberates the world of 1913 from this prelude to war narrative and explores it as it was in all its richness and complexity Traveling from Europe s capitals then at the height of their global reach to the emerging metropolises of Canada and the United States the imperial cities of Asia and Africa and the boomtowns of Australia and South America he provides a panoramic view of a world crackling with possibilities its future still undecided its outlook still open The world in 1913 was more modern than we remember more similar to our own times than we expect more globalized than ever before The Gold Standard underpinned global flows of goods and money while mass migration reshaped the world s human geography Steamships and sub sea cables encircled the earth along with new technologies and new ideas Ford s first assembly line cranked to life in 1913 in Detroit The Woolworth Building went up in New York While Mexico was in the midst of bloody revolution Winnipeg and Buenos Aires boomed An era of petro geopolitics opened in Iran China appeared to be awaking from its imperial slumber Paris celebrated itself as the city of light Berlin as the city of electricity Full of fascinating characters stories and insights 1913 In Search of the World before the Great War brings a lost world vividly back to life with provocative implications for how we understand our past and how we think about our future
