Management and Regional Science for Economic Development Manas Chatterji, 2012-12-06 The greatest challenge facing mankind today is the immense disparity in the levels of income among people in different parts of the globe The growth rate of income of the poor countries is consistently far below the rate of the advanced industrialized nations Due to low income and a high propensity to consume there is very little left in these countries for investment A major portion of the resources available is devoted to military expenditures This continual decline in the standard of living coupled with poverty and unemployment will lead to social and political upheaval in these countries which affects developed countries Because of high capacity and low population growth the market of the developed countries is already saturated To maintain the high standard of living in the developed countries it is necessary to have a strong and stable developing world It is gratifying to see that both groups of countries see the need for peaceful economic growth however the amount of cooperation between countries and the material help from the developed countries are far from satisfactory The economic and social scientists have investigated the best way to achieve the transformation from a poverty ridden condition to a decent existence Their studies have proceeded in two different directions One is a more descriptive historical analysis and the other is theoretical model building Although these studies have achieved a relatively high level of perfection one significant factor is sometimes missing

Development Strategies Under The New Normal Khee Giap Tan, Randong Yuan, Sangiita Wei, Cher Yoong, 2015-11-09

After more than three decades of rapid growth, China is now entering into the New Normal Era which will be characterised by slower but sustainable quality growth for several decades to come. How China will fare under the New Normal Era matters not only for itself but also for its great impact on global prosperity. While presenting as the second instalment of ACI's annual tracking of the dynamics of competitiveness among 34 Greater China economies, this volume also includes the results of the inaugural regional competitiveness analysis for five regions of Greater China. As regional imbalance in socioeconomic advancement is a serious issue, China has to face up to under the New Normal Era, the results of such competitiveness analysis at provincial and regional levels offer insights for policy makers to help address concerns associated with the regional disparity in development and facilitate industry leaders and other stakeholders in identifying challenges and opportunities for sound decision making. The Micro-analysis of Regional Economy in China Houkai Wei, Yeqiang Wang, Bai Mei, 2013. The author also put forward policy advices on the themes above such as the central government should pay more attention to the fairness goals in the market economy framework, some policies should be improved to positively and reasonably guide and regulate firm relocation in China, for example, enterprises from Chinese coastal areas should be encouraged to move to the mid and west areas, the industrialization and urbanization in mid and west areas should be accelerated, the economic development should be geared to the bearing capacity of natural resources and environment, industries and economic activities should be promoted to agglomerate effectively in metropolitan regions.
