Relational Concepts In Psychoanalysis An Integration:

Relational Concepts in Psychoanalysis Stephen A. Mitchell, 2009-07-01 There are more psychoanalytic theories today than anyone knows what to do with and the heterogeneity and complexity of the entire body of psychoanalytic thought have become staggering In Relational Concepts in Psychoanalysis Stephen A Mitchell weaves strands from the principal relational model traditions interpersonal psychoanalysis British school object relations theories self psychology and existential psychoanalysis into a comprehensive approach to many of the knottiest problems and controversies in theoretical and clinical psychoanalysis Mitchell's earlier book Object Relations in Psychoanalytic Theory co authored with Jay Greenberg set the stage for this current integration by providing a broad comparative analysis of important thinking on the nature of human relationships In that classic study Greenberg and Mitchell distinguished between two basic paradigms the drive model in which relations with others are generated and shaped by the need for drive gratifications and various relational models in which relations themselves are taken as primary and irreducible In Relational Concepts in Psychoanalysis Mitchell argues that the drive model has since outlived its usefulness The relational model on the other hand has been developed piecemeal by different authors who rarely acknowledge and explore the commonality of their assumptions or the rich complementarity of their perspectives In this bold effort at integrative theorizing Mitchell draws together major lines of relational model traditions into a unified framework for psychoanalytic thought more economical than the anachronistic drive model and more inclusive than any of the singular relational approaches to the core significance of sexuality the impact of early experience the relation of the past to the present the interpenetration of illusion and actuality the centrality of the will the repetition of painful experience the nature of analytic situation and the process of analytic change As such his book will be required reading for psychoanalytic scholars practitioners candidates in psychoanalysis and students in the field

Integrative Therapy Maja O'Brien, Gaie Houston, 2007-01-24 The book is comprehensive and extensively researched and referenced The last chapter contains some excellent training resources for trainers of counsellors psychotherapists I would therefore endorse it as a useful textbook especially as there is an excellent in depth example of an assessment form and guidance on how this can be used for trainees These were useful revision points to me as an experienced counsellor The Independent Practitioner The book would be useful to practitioners who want to start thinking outside the box of a particular orientation It is also aimed at students and trainers the last 40 pages in particular are full of practical training exercises Overall I would recommend it as a well reasoned argument for therapy to be rooted in an integrative base Therapy Today Throughout the book it is assumed that we can learn from each other and that we need to whatever orientation we were trained in in the service of the client I find this pragmatic approach open and refreshing in a period when some of us have polarised around the what works best debate Both authors are experienced practitioners and trainers and their commitment to integrative counselling and psychotherapy shines through AUCC Journal Integration rather than a single theory has become accepted and widely recommended as a way forward in psychotherapy and counselling Integrative Therapy Second Edition a timely and innovative guide for practitioners is based on the view that training and practice methods should be evaluated for their usefulness to the client instead of their adherence to a particular model Drawing from research on therapy process and outcome and on human development respectively the authors highlight striking similarities between the change processes involved in these two areas of study The findings provide a basis for an adaptable framework for integrative practice The authors pinpoint what is common as well as what is different in various approaches using case illustrations to make comparisons throughout between the three major models psychodynamic humanistic existential and cognitive behavioural What emerges is the central importance of the therapeutic relationship in the process of change how to be with clients as opposed to what to do Fully revised and updated this Second Edition includes new material on neuroscience and practitioner oriented research methodology showing how the processes of doing research and doing therapy have many things in common The book aims to cultivate a spirit of willingness amongst therapists trained in one model to learn from colleagues trained in others It also features exercises to support its use on courses and will thus be invaluable to trainees of counselling psychotherapy and counselling psychology Maja O'Brien is a chartered counselling psychologist and psychotherapist supervisor and trainer based in Oxford and a Principal Lecturer on the Doctorate in Psychotherapy by Professional Studies run jointly by the Metanoia Institute and Middlesex University Gaie Houston is a writer UKCP registered psychotherapist and senior lecturer at The Gestalt Centre London
