Hearing Ourselves

Think Ann M. Penrose, Barbara M. Sitko, 1993-07-01 In Hearing Ourselves Think cognitive process research moves from the laboratory to the college classroom where its rich research tradition continues and an important new set of instructional approaches emerges Each chapter moves from research results to classroom action providing a direct and important link between research theory and practice The book develops the concept of the research based classroom in which students actively examine the processes and contexts of reading and writing and then turn their observations into principles for practice Hearing Ourselves Think contributes to a lively new tradition of socio cognitive research in writing and reading exploring the dynamics of cognitive processes as they interact with dimensions of the academic context

Thinking

Thinking Through Place on the Early Modern English Stage Andrew Bozio, 2020-02-06 Thinking Through Place on the Early Modern English Stage argues that environment and embodied thought continually shaped one another in the performance of early modern English drama It demonstrates this first by establishing how characters think through their surroundings not only how they orient themselves within unfamiliar or otherwise strange locations but also how their environs function as the scaffolding for perception memory and other forms of embodied thought It then contends that these moments of thinking through place theorise and thematise the work that playgoers undertook in reimagining the stage as the setting of the dramatic fiction By tracing the relationship between these two registers of thought in such plays as The Malcontent Dido Queen of Carthage Tamburlaine King Lear The Knight of the Burning Pestle and Bartholomew Fair this book shows that drama makes visible the often invisible means by which embodied subjects acquire a sense of their surroundings It also reveals how in doing so theatre altered the way that playgoers perceived experienced and imagined place in early modern England
