New Organic Architecture The Breaking Wave:

New Organic Architecture David Pearson, 2001 New Organic Architecture is a manifesto for building in a way that is both aesthetically pleasing and kinder to the environment. It illuminates key themes of organic architecture: their sources of inspiration, the roots and concepts behind the style, and the environmental challenges to be met. The organic approach to architecture has an illustrious history from Celtic design, Art Nouveau, Arts and Crafts to the work of Antoni Gaudí and Frank Lloyd Wright. Today there is a response to a new age of information and ecology; architects are seeking to change the relationship between buildings and the natural environment. In the first part of his book, David Pearson provides a history and assessment of organic architecture. The second part comprises statements from thirty architects from around the world whose work is based on natural or curvilinear forms rather than the straight line geometrics of modernism. Each statement is accompanied by full color illustrations of one or several of the architects' built projects.

New Organic Architecture David Pearson, 2001 David Pearson presents a beautifully illustrated and inspired portrayal of modern organic architecture featuring over 20 architects from all over the world as well as some of his own work. New Organic Architecture David Pearson, 2001

Organic Cinema Thorsten Botz-Bornstein, 2017-06-01 The organic is by now a venerable concept within aesthetics, architecture, and art history, but what might such a term mean within the spatialities and temporalities of film? By way of an answer, this concise and innovative study locates organicity in the work of Béla Tarr, the renowned Hungarian filmmaker and pioneer of the slow cinema movement. Through a wholly original analysis of the long take and other signature features of Tarr's work, author Thorsten Botz-Bornstein establishes compelling links between the seemingly remote spheres of film and architecture, revealing shared organic principles that emphasize the transcendence of boundaries.

Fractal Architecture James Harris, 2012-07-15 Throughout history, nature has served as an inspiration for architecture, and designers have tried to incorporate the harmonies and patterns of nature into architectural form. Alberti, Charles, Renée Macintosh, Frank Lloyd Wright, and Le Corbusier are just a few of the well-known figures who have taken this approach and written on this theme. With the development of fractal geometry, the study of intricate and interesting self-similar mathematical patterns in the last part of the twentieth century, the quest to replicate nature's creative code took a stunning new turn. Using computers, it is now possible to model and create the organic self-similar forms of nature in a way never previously realized. In Fractal Architecture, architect James Harris presents a definitive, lavishly illustrated guide that explains both the how and why of incorporating fractal geometry into architectural design.

Contemporary Architecture and the Digital Design Process Peter Szalapaj, 2014-04-23 Contemporary Architecture and the Digital Design Process introduces the reader to new developments in the computer modelling of design form in contemporary architectural practice through a series of detailed case studies The book illustrates how evolving design practices use and exploit the potential of new computing technologies in a wide range of areas and application A central thesis of this book is that technology follows design demand rather than design adjusting to available new technology Designers are not merely passive recipients of prescribed computing tools and techniques Instead they are increasingly able to express their intuitive design ideas through the rational medium of computing The book features several contemporary building projects each of which introduces a range of CAD and computing issues based upon the work of creative architectural and engineering design practices These include the offices of Frank O Gehry Peter Cook and Colin Fournier Anthony Hunt Associates Peter Hubner Szyskowitz Kowalski and Faulkner Brown All these examples show what architects need to know and the skills they need to acquire to use advanced CAD technology

Towards Zero-energy Architecture Mary Guzowski, 2010-10-11 This book explores the theories practices and principles of new approaches to solar architecture that foster both design excellence and low energy use In response to the challenges of global warming and climate change design and technology enable architects

to achieve greater performance standards while at the same time developing an environmental aesthetic The book showcases ten award winning buildings to illustrate the aesthetic and technological design integration of solar response in contemporary zero energy and low energy architecture For each project there is a detailed examination of the local climate the design and construction and the technology used to reduce energy use Towards Zero energy Architecture is a much needed call for the design professions to redefine architecture to help solve ecological problems Eco-architecture III Santiago Hernández, 2010-03-16 This book contains most of the papers presented in the Eco Architecture 2010 conference which was the third edition of the International Conference on Harmonisation between Architecture and Nature Previous editions that were very successful were held previously in the New Forest UK in 2006 and the Algarve Portugal in 2008 and demonstrated the importance of a forum like this to discuss the characteristics and challenges of such architectural vision Eco Architecture implies a new approach to the design process intended to harmonise its products with nature This involves ideas such as minimum use of energy at each stage of the building process taking into account the amount required during the extraction and transportation of materials their fabrication assembly building erection maintenance and eventual future recycling Presentations in the conference were related to topics like building technologies design by passive systems design with nature ecological and cultural sensitivity life cycle assessment quantifying sustainability in architecture resources and rehabilitation and issues from education research and practice Case studies from different places around the world were also presented The Inhabitable Flesh of Architecture Marcos Cruz, 2017-03-02 Today's architecture has failed the body with its long heritage of purity of form and aesthetic of cleanliness A resurgence of interest in flesh especially in art has led to a politics of abjection completely changing traditional aesthetics and is now giving light to an alternative discussion about the body in architecture This book is dedicated to a future vision of the body in architecture questioning the contemporary relationship between our Human Flesh and the changing Architectural Flesh Through the analysis and design of a variety of buildings and projects Flesh is proposed as a concept that extends the meaning of skin one of architecture's most fundamental metaphors It seeks to challenge a common misunderstanding of skin as a flat and thin surface In a time when a pervasive discourse about the impact of digital technologies risks turning the architectural skin ever more disembodied this book argues for a thick embodied flesh by exploring architectural interfaces that are truly inhabitable Different concepts of Flesh are investigated not only concerning the architectural and aesthetic but also the biological aspects The latter is materialised in form of Synthetic Neoplasms which are proposed as new semi living entities rather than more commonly derived from scaled up analogies between biological systems and larger scale architectural constructs These neoplastic creations are identified as partly designed object and partly living material in which the line between the natural and the artificial is progressively blurred Hybrid technologies and interdisciplinary work methodologies are thus required and lead to a revision of our current architectural practice Architecture, Ethics, and the Personhood of Place Gregory

Caicco,2007 Architecture and environmental design are among the last professional fields to develop a sustained and nuanced discussion concerning ethics Hemmed in by politics and powerful clients on one side and the often unscrupulous practices of the construction industry on the other environmental designers have been traditionally reluctant to address ethical issues head on And yet the rapid urbanization of the world s population continues to swell into new megacities each less healthy welcoming secure or environmentally sustainable than the next Green carbon reduced and sustainable building practices are important ways architects have recently responded to the symptoms of the crisis but are these efforts really addressing the core issues Taking the Dine Navajo Hogan Song a song used to protect and nourish the personhood of newly constructed dwellings as their inspiration the architects philosophers poets and other contemporary scholars contributing to this volume demonstrate that a deeper more radical change in our relationship to the built world needs to occur While offering a careful critique of modernist corporate or techno enthralled design practices these essays investigate an alternative relational ecology whose wisdom draws from ancient and often marginalized voices if not the whisperings of the earth itself Contributors include Richard Kearney Alberto Perez Gomez Juhani Pallasmaa Karsten Harries Edward Casey Susan Stewart David Abram Stacy Alaimo Jace and Laura Weaver Philip Sheldrake and Sebnem Yucel Young
