

The Universe conspired
for us to be together.

A gold-colored rectangular frame is filled with a variety of pressed flowers. The flowers include purple bell-shaped flowers, white daisies with yellow centers, blue bell-shaped flowers, and purple carnations. Green foliage is interspersed among the blooms. In the center of the frame is a white rectangular card with a decorative, torn-edge border. The card contains the text "The Universe conspired for us to be together." in a black, serif font. The entire framed arrangement is placed on a dark wooden surface.

Handbook of Creativity John A. Glover, Royce R. Ronning, Cecil R. Reynolds, 2013-03-09 The motivation underlying our development of a handbook of creativity was different from what usually is described by editors of other such volumes Our sense that a handbook was needed sprang not from a deluge of highly erudite studies calling out for organization nor did it stem from a belief that the field had become so fully articulated that such a book was necessary to provide summation and reference Instead this handbook was conceptualized as an attempt to provide structure and organization for a field of study that from our perspective had come to be a large scale example of a degenerating research program see Brown Chapter 1 The handbook grew out of a series of discussions that spanned several years At the heart of most of our interactions was a profound unhappiness with the state of research on creativity Our consensus was that the number of good works published on creativity each year was small and growing smaller Further we could not point to a journal text or professional organization that was providing leadership for the field in shaping a scientifically sound framework for the development of research programs in creativity At the same time we were casting about for a means of honoring a dear friend E Paul Torrance Our decision was that we might best be able to honor Paul and influence research on creativity by developing a handbook designed to challenge traditional perspectives while offering research agendas based on contemporary psychological views

The Primary Plan Book Marian Minnie George, 1912

The Arts & Decoration Quarterly ,1929      Rhetoric and the Arts of Design David S. Kaufer, Brian S. Butler, 2013-11-26

The design arts from the design of buildings and machines to software and interfaces are associated with types of knowledge and performance thought to be structured modular and systematic Such arts have become increasingly prestigious in our technocratic society Since Aristotle the art of rhetoric was conceived as a loosely structured practical art thought to be limited in the extent to which it could mimic more precise subject matters The art of rhetoric has been controversial since classical times but its status has sunk even lower since the industrial revolution a point when civic cultures began to cede authority and control to the cultures of specialized experts Many sympathizers of rhetoric have resisted its decline by calling for a civic art of public discourse to stand in opposition to a technocratic specialized discourse that has come increasingly to disenfranchise the ordinary citizen This is the first book to question the rhetoric technical knowledge split from a more fundamental perspective To get some perspective on what is at stake in rhetoric s traditional classification as a practical art the authors explore the distinction between practical and design arts enumerate the various criteria cited in the literature for qualifying a cluster of knowledge and performative skills to count as an art of design show how the knowledge and performative skills associated with the art of rhetoric meet the major requirements of design knowledge propose a general architecture of rhetorical design one descriptive both of civic address and specialized academic argument turn to the Lincoln Douglas debates to embody and provide some empirical support and illustration for their architecture demonstrate how Lincoln and Douglas can be thought of as expert designers whose rhetoric is highly structured and modular and explain how the rhetoric of both rhetorical agents can be represented in the layers and modules that one needs to display plans for buildings software or other design artifacts These layers and modules are not just post hoc annotations of the debates they also illuminate new and systematic ways for viewing the debates and by implication other specimens of rhetoric in terms of strategies of artistic production Kaufer and Butler conclude their presentation by citing some of the research and educational implications that follow from housing rhetoric within the family of design arts Design Objects and the Museum Liz Farrelly, Joanna Weddell, 2016-01-28 Design Objects and the Museum brings together leading design historians curators educators and archivists to consider the place of contemporary design objects within museums Contributors draw on a wide range of 20th century and contemporary examples from international museums to consider how design objects have been curated and displayed within and beyond the museum The book continues contemporary global debates on the ways in which museums of design engage and educate their public Chapters are grouped into three thematic sections addressing The Canon and Design in the Museum Positioning Design within and Beyond the Museum and Interpretation and the Challenge of Design with chapters exploring museological practice and issues the roles people play in creating meaning and the challenges contemporary design presents to interpretation and learning within the museum The Household (of the Detroit Free Press).
