Venuvinod,Weiyin Ma,2013-04-17 Since the dawn of civilization mankind has been engaged in the conception and manufacture of discrete products to serve the functional needs of local customers and the tools technology needed by other craftsmen In fact much of the progress in civilization can be attributed to progress in discrete product manufacture The functionality of a discrete object depends on two entities form and material composition For instance the aesthetic appearance of a sculpture depends upon its form whereas its durability depends upon the material composition An ideal manufacturing process is one that is able to automatically generate any form freeform in any material However unfortunately most traditional manufacturing processes are severely constrained on all these counts There are three basic ways of creating form conservative subtractive and additive In the first approach we take a material and apply the needed forces to deform it to the required shape without either adding or removing material i e we conserve material Many industrial processes such as forging casting sheet metal forming and extrusion emulate this approach A problem with many of these approaches is that they focus on form generation without explicitly providing any means for controlling material composition In fact even form is not created directly They merely duplicate the external form embedded in external tooling such as dies and molds and the internal form embedded in cores etc Till recently we have had to resort to the subtractive approach to create the form of the tooling Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office USA Patent Office,1915 Circular - National Bureau of Standards United States. Lassner,W.-D. Schubert,B. Lux,2013-10-22 Non sag NS tungsten is a dispersion strengthened microalloy with elemental potassium which is contained as microscopic bubbles in the tungsten lattice Under working conditions in an incandescent lamp the potassium is a gas under high pressure These gas bubbles essentially prevent the recrystallization of the tungsten wire and are responsible for the outstanding creep resistance of NS tungsten at the extremely high temperatures of a glowing lamp filament More than 90% of NS tungsten is used for incandescent lamps In addition small amounts are used as defroster heating wires in automobile windshields and as heating wire coils for aluminium evaporation in metallization applications The presented papers deal with the chemical reactions and the chemical compounds occurring along the path from tungsten raw materials to the final NS tungsten filament a compendium of present knowledge on the different chemical aspects of NS tungsten manufacture is presented It is composed of nine individual papers each of them written by experts working in the field Powder Metallurgy Stainless Steels Erhard Klar,Prasan K.
