, The Rise and Fall of American Art, 1940s-1980s Catherine Dossin, 2016-03-03 In The Rise and Fall of American Art 1940s 1980s Catherine Dossin challenges the now mythic perception of New York as the undisputed center of the art world between the end of World War II and the fall of the Berlin Wall a position of power that brought the city prestige money and historical recognition Dossin reconstructs the concrete factors that led to the shift of international attention from Paris to New York in the 1950s and documents how peripheries such as Italy Belgium and West Germany exerted a decisive influence on this displacement of power As the US economy sank into recession in the 1970s however American artists and dealers became increasingly dependent on the support of Western Europeans and cities like Cologne and Turin emerged as major commercial and artistic hubs a development that enabled European artists to return to the forefront of the international art scene in the 1980s Dossin analyses in detail these changing distributions of geopolitical and symbolic power in the Western art worlds a story that spans two continents forty years and hundreds of actors Her transnational and interdisciplinary study provides an original and welcome supplement to more traditional formal and national readings of the period Paintings

Locating American Art Cynthia Fowler, 2017-07-05 How does museum location shape the interpretation of an art object by critics curators art historians and others To what extent is the value of a work of art determined by its location Providing a close examination of individual works of American art in relation to gallery and museum location this anthology presents case studies of paintings sculpture photographs and other media that explore these questions about the relationship between location and the prescribed meaning of art. It takes an alternate perspective in that it provides in depth analysis of works of art that are less well known than the usual American art suspects and in locations outside of art museums in major urban cultural centers. By doing so the contributors to this volume reveal that such a shift in focus yields an expanded and more complex understanding of American art. Close examinations are given to works located in small and mid sized art museums throughout the United States museums that generally do not benefit from the resources afforded by more powerful cultural establishments such as the Museum of Modern Art and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. Works of art located at institutions other than art museums are also examined. Although the book primarily focuses on paintings other media created from the Colonial Period to the present are considered including material culture and craft. The volume takes an inclusive approach to American art by featuring works created by a diverse group of artists from canonical to lesser known ones and provides new insights by highlighting the regional and the local.

Russian and Soviet Views of Modern Western Art Ilia Dorontchenkov, N. A. Gur'ianova, 2009. From the first Modernist exhibitions in the late 1890s to the Soviet rupture with the West in the mid 1930s Russian artists and writers came into wide contact with modern European art and ideas. Introducing a wealth of little known material set in an illuminating interpretive context this sourcebook presents Russian and Soviet views of Western art during this critical period of cultural transformation. The writings document complex responses to these works and ideas before the Russians lost contact with them almost entirely. Many of these writings have been unavailable to foreign readers and until recently were not widely known even to Russian scholars. Both an important reference and a valuable resource for classrooms the book includes an introductory essay and shorter introductions to the individual sections.
