New Public Policy For Neighborhood Preservation:

Neighborhood Conservation and Property Rehabilitation United States. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Library Division, 1979 A New Public Policy for Neighborhood Preservation Roger S. Ahlbrandt, James V. Cunningham, 1979 Neighborhood Preservation Real Estate Research Corporation, 1975 Neighborhood and Community Environments Irwin Altman, Abraham Wandersman, 2013-06-29 This ninth volume in the series deals with a fascinating and complex topic in the environment and behavior field Neighborhoods and communities are in various stages of formation and transition in almost every society nation and culture A variety of political economic and social factors have resulted in the formation of new communities and the transformation of older communities Thus we see nomadic people settling into stable communities new towns sprouting up around the world continuing suburban sprawl simultaneous deterioration renewal and gentrification of urban areas demographic changes in communities and so on As in previous volumes the range of content theory and methods represented in the various chapters is intended to be broadly based with perspectives rooted in several disciplines anthropology history psychology sociology urban studies Although many other disciplines also play an important role in the study and understanding of neighborhoods and community environments we hope that the contributions to this volume will at least present readers with a broad sampling if not a comprehensive treatment of the topic Organizing for Community Controlled Development Patricia W. Murphy, James V. Cunningham, 2003-01-23 This book is both important and timely Written by practitioners who are also academics the book combines solid research observation and practical experience that speak forcefully to the need for both local place based development and greater citizen involvement The examples they give of successful local efforts to renew neighborhoods demonstrate that change is possible and that resources are available for such purposes Patricia W Murphy and James V Cunningham have provided a roadmap for rebuilding many of our communities and for strengthening the foundations of our democracy Neighborhood Networks for Humane Mental Health Care Arthur J. Naparstek, David E. Biegel, Herzl R. Spiro, 2012-12-06 It is hard to think of a more timely and topical major contribution than Drs Naparstek Biegel Spiro and collaborators have provided in this volume Their penetrating comprehensive study and field tests give us mapping toward the goal of reifying the concept of community as applied to human services The book will prove invaluable to those at the policy level legislators planners and administrators It will serve as an essential reference for community workers professional providers natural helpers and citizens as a whole A salient ideal of New Federalism placing governance as close to the people as practicable seems a prophetic match with the model of Neighborhood Empowerment As the authors point out conventional wisdom has seemed to offer government regulation control and program evaluation as a panacea package for improving human services This work suggests a radically different approach specifically a shift to greater instrumental involvement of the richly variegated mosaic of American neighborhoods combined with a system of excellent high technology service agencies Certainly genuine efforts have been made before toward a true linkage of the community with human services The Great Society programs with their emphasis on citizen involvement and maximum feasible participation established the foundation for legitimate citizen consumer linkage with the program process Yet in so many instances the results fell far short of expectations

Beyond the Individual Abraham Wandersman, Robert Hess, 1985 Here is a stimulating volume on the psychological damage caused by our exposures to ills in the environment Topics include case studies from environmental catastrophes Love Canal Three Mile Island and research on how groups respond to and cope with environmental stresses This timely book is aimed at environmental policymakers public health personnel agency staff and mental health personnel all professionals concerned with the impact of the environment on our physical and psychological health

Revitalizing Urban Neighborhoods William Dennis Keating, Norman Krumholz, Philip Star, 1996 Since the 1950s and the advance of urban renewal local governments and urban policy have focused heavily on the central business district However such development has all but ignored the inner city neighborhoods that continue to struggle in the shadows of high rise America This analysis of urban neighborhoods in the United States from 1960 to 1995 presents fifteen essays by scholars of urban planning and development Together they show how urban neighborhoods can and must be preserved as economic cultural and political centers

Homeowners and Neighborhood Reinvestment George C. Galster, 1987 This book investigates the efforts of homeowners to maintain and improve their dwellings Their behavior it has found depends on economic variables as well as the sociological structure of their neighborhoods Residential satisfaction expectations of the neighborhood and mobility plans were taken into account Multivariate statistical analyses of models were conducted using household data from Minneapolis and Wooster Ohio Three important findings emerged First homeowners sense of solidarity with their neighbors is as significant in determining their efforts at home upkeep as are their income or age Second the optimism of homeowners toward increases in property values results in behavior opposite to that produced by optimism about neighborhood quality of life This implies that different kinds of predictable gaming behavior occur among homeowners depending on the neighborhoods in which they live Third both short term and extremely long term plans to move prove damaging to home upkeep The results of this study form the basis for a better understanding of such residential phenomena as class succession racial transition and gentrification Galster's findings will also be valuable for analyzing policies that attempt to encourage neighborhood reinvestment

HUD Challenge, 1975 Challenge, 1975 Handbook of Community Psychology Julian Rappaport, Edward Seidman, 2012-12-06 As a field progresses people write about their own work in journals chapters and books but periodically the work needs to be collected and organized It needs to be brought together in a format that can both introduce new members to the field and reacquaint continuing members with the work of their colleagues Such a collection also affords an opportunity for the growing number of people with particular expertise to provide a reference for others whose work is related but differs in focus This is the first Handbook of Community Psychology It contains contributions from 106 different authors in addition to our editorial introductions Its thirty eight chapters including two that are divided into multiple individually authored parts are concerned with conceptual frameworks empirically grounded constructs intervention strategies and tactics social systems design assessment and analysis cross cutting professional issues and contemporary intersections with community psychology Although interrelated each chapter stands on its own as a statement about a particular part of the field and the volume can serve as a reference for those who may want to explore an area about which they are not yet familiar To some extent community psychologists eschew the distinction between researcher and practitioner and regardless of one's primary work environment university small college practice setting government or grassroots organization there is something of interest for anyone who wants to explore the community psychology approach
