politics local media and information environments of both East Asia and the World Since China's ascendancy toward major power status began in the 1990s many observers have focused on its economic growth and expanding military China's ability was limited in projecting power over information and media and the infrastructure through which information flows That has begun to change Beijing's state backed media which once seemed incapable having a significant effect globally has been overhauled and expanded At a time when many democracies media outlets are consolidating due to financial pressures China's biggest state media outlets like the newswire Xinhua are modernizing professionalizing and expanding in attempt to reach an international audience Overseas Beijing also attempts to impact local media civil society and politics by having Chinese firms or individuals with close links buy up local media outlets by signing content sharing deals with local media by expanding China's social media giants and by controlling the wireless and wired technology through which information now flows among other efforts In Beijing's Global Media Offensive a major analysis of how China is attempting to build a media and information superpower around the world and how this media power integrates with other forms of Chinese influence Joshua Kurlantzick focuses on how all of this is playing out in both China's immediate neighborhood Southeast Asia Taiwan Australia and New Zealand and also in the United States and many other parts of the world He traces the ways in which China is trying to build an information and influence superpower but also critically examines the new conventional wisdom that Beijing has enjoyed great success with these efforts While China has worked hard to build a global media and information superpower it often has failed to reap gains from its efforts and has undermined itself with overly assertive alienating diplomacy Still Kurlantzick contends China's media information and political influence campaigns will continue to expand and adapt helping Beijing exports its political model and protect the ruling Party and potentially damaging press freedoms human rights and democracy abroad An authoritative account of how this sophisticated and multi pronged campaign is unfolding Beijing's Global Media Offensive provides a new window into China's attempts to make itself an information superpower
