Desnoyers,2019-02-21 The little known art of Berlin Work was once the most commonly practiced art form among European women Pictorial Embroidery in England is the first academic study of both pictorial Berlin Work and its precursor needlepainting exploring their cultural status in the 18th and 19th centuries From enlightenment practices of copying to the development of an industrial aesthetic and the making of the modern amateur Berlin Work developed as an official knowledge associated with notions of cultural and scientific progress However with the advent of the Arts and Crafts movement and modernist aesthetics Berlin Work was gradually demoted to a craft hobby Delving into the social cultural and economic context of English pictorial embroidery Pictorial Embroidery in England recovers Berlin Work as an art form and demonstrates how this overlooked practice was once at the centre of cultural life Bulletin United States. Office of Education,1914 Knitting America Susan M. Maines,2009-08-01 Rachel P Maines s latest work examines the rise of hobbies and leisure activities in Western culture from antiquity to the present day As technologies are hedonized consumers find increasing pleasure in the hobbies associated tools methods and instructional literature Work once essential to survival and comfort gardening hunting cooking needlework home mechanics and brewing have gradually evolved into hobbies and recreational activities As a result the technologies associated with these pursuits have become less efficient but more appealing to the new class of leisure artisans Maines interprets the growth and economic significance of hobbies in terms of broad consumer demand for the technologies associated with them Hedonizing Technologies uses bibliometric and retail census data to show the growth in world markets for hobby craft tools books periodicals and materials from the late 18th century to today The book addresses basic issues in the history of labor and industry and makes an original contribution to the discussion of how technology and people interact

Prologue ,2002 Fundraising, Flirtation and Fancywork Annette Shiell,2014-07-24 Fundraising Flirtation and Fancywork examines the history and development of the charity bazaar movement in Australia Transported from Britain the charity bazaar played an integral role in Australian communal social and philanthropic life from the early days of European settlement Ranging in size and scale from simple sales of goods to month long extravaganzas charity bazaars were such a popular and successful means of raising revenue that they sustained the majority of the nation s major public and religious institutions The nineteenth century charity bazaar was a paradox On the one hand it encapsulated responsibility and civic duty through its raison d etre which was the provision of support for charitable causes On the other it encouraged a loosening of social and gendered restraint as women of the middle and upper classes repositioned themselves in a public space where the acquisition of material goods gambling and flirting with men was actively encouraged From their inception bazaars were the domain of women They provided middle and upper class women with an opportunity to exercise their organisational creative and social skills outside the domestic sphere within a framework of socially acceptable philanthropic endeavour Women s dominance and public role in charity bazaars destabilised conventional gender relations The nucleus of the charity bazaar was the fancywork produced by women for sale on the stalls Bazaars were an accessible and important repository for the display and sale of women s creative work and the bazaar movement was instrumental in shaping women s fancywork Bazaars were revered and reviled in colonial Australia Despite the criticisms and the many social and cultural changes that occurred in nineteenth century Australia charity bazaars continued to escalate in number popularity and complexity They predated and influenced the great international exhibitions and the development of larger shops and emporiums and by the end of the century had evolved into themed entertainment and shopping spectacles known as grand bazaars Charity bazaars mirrored and shaped the social customs mores and fashions of their time and are a rich largely untapped interdisciplinary historical source Annual register of women's clubs ,1925 Library Bulletins ,1897

Stitching the World: Embroidered Maps and Women's Geographical Education Judith A. Tyner,2016-12-05 From the late eighteenth century until about 1840 schoolgirls in the British Isles and the United States created embroidered map samplers and even silk globes Hundreds of British maps were made and although American examples are more rare they form a significant collection of artefacts Descriptions of these samplers stated that they were designed to teach needlework and geography The focus of this book is not on stitches and techniques used in drafting the maps but rather why they were developed how they diffused from the British Isles to the United States and why they were made for such a brief time The events of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries stimulated an explosion of interest in geography The American and French Revolutions the wars between France and England the War of 1812 Captain Cook s voyages and the explorations of Lewis and Clark made the study of places exciting and important Geography was the first science taught to girls in school This period also coincided with major changes in educational theories and practices especially for girls and this book uses needlework maps and globes to chart a broader discussion of women's geographic education. In this light, map samplers and embroidered globes represent a transition in women's education from accomplishments in the eighteenth century to challenging geographic education and conventional map drawing in schools and academies of the second half of the nineteenth century. There has been little serious study of these maps by cartographers and moreover historians of cartography have largely neglected the role of women in mapping. Children's maps have not been studied although they might have much to offer about geographical teaching and perceptions of a period and map samplers have been dismissed because they are the work of schoolgirls. Needlework historians likewise have not done in-depth studies of map samplers until recently. Stitching the World is an interdisciplinary work drawing on cartography, needlework and material culture. This book for the first time provides a critical analysis of these artefacts showing that they offer significant insights into both eighteenth and nineteenth century geographic thought and cartography in the USA and the UK and into the development of female education. Belgravia, 1886
