New Perspectives On Extension Education:

New Perspectives on Extension Education Sita Ram Sharma, 2002 University Extension services often referred to as the third arm of the university have been conceived of as a strategy for drawing universities to help with the country's efforts at development and thus enlarging their scope from the limited function of teaching or conducting research to the larger task of serving the needs of society. While the delegation of this new responsibility to universities constitutes the core of extension, the assumption is that universities also stand to gain. In fact, it is firmly believed that by taking students, teachers, researchers, and even university administrators out of the ivory towers of academe and providing for their dynamic interaction with reality, extension work enriches teaching, learning, and research. University Extension services have been employed for several purposes, notably for the promotion of modern and scientific practices in agriculture, for the cultivation of social consciousness regarding preventive health measures, and for the promotion of health care, for spreading awareness of the population problem, and for the dissemination of the knowledge regarding measures for population control, for the achievement of adult education, and most recently for the successful implementation of the country's literacy mission.

New Perspectives on Translanguaging and Education BethAnne Paulsrud, Jenny Rosén, Boglárka Straszer, Åsa Wedin, 2017-05-16 This edited collection explores the immense potential of translanguaging in educational settings and highlights teachers and students negotiating language ideologies in their everyday communicative practices. It makes a significant contribution to scholarship on translanguaging and considers the need for pedagogy to reflect and embrace diversity. The chapters provide rich empirical research and document translanguaging in varied educational contexts with studies from pre-school to adult education in different, mainly European countries where English is not the dominant language. Together, they expand our understanding of translanguaging and how it can be applied to a variety of settings. This book will be of interest to students and researchers, especially in education, language education, and applied linguistics, as well as to professionals and policymakers.

Advances and New Perspectives in Higher Education Quality Maria Esteban, Ana B. Bernardo, Ellian Tuero Herrero, Joana R. Casanova, Antonio Cervero, 2024-04-22 The changes that have occurred in today's society require Higher Education to be highly efficient in the academic and professional preparation of young people who enter university. For that reason, universities around the globe have been advocating in recent years for an improvement in the quality of teaching-learning processes. As an example, the World University Consortium 2023 currently presents among its most urgent and priority objectives the identification of the best evaluative practices of the educational processes that are carried out at the University, as well as the recognition of the actions aimed at improving educational processes based on scientific evidence. In this way, it seeks to distinguish all those educational actions that are at the forefront, going from actions at the micro level, such as individual teaching practices in the classroom, such as the application of the flipped classroom or the use of augmented reality, up to actions taken at the macro level, such as those proposed in the Horizon Europe 2020.

The book's research focuses on new pedagogical methodologies and approaches that can be utilized to engage students and improve their learning outcomes. It also highlights the role of the modern lecturer in new teaching and learning contexts that utilize ICTs and emphasizes the need for educators to adapt their teaching approaches to meet the changing needs of today's learners. This book is an essential resource for educators, policy makers and researchers seeking to stay up to date with the latest trends and approaches in higher education and ICTs. New Perspectives on Older Language Learners Miriam

Neigert, 2019-05-13 Young old learners are an underresearched group in foreign second language research. The present mixed methods study aims to provide a more differentiated view of this group in the context of lifelong learning and more specifically learning English as a foreign language. The author draws from concepts in gerontology, psychology, adult education and foreign second language research to investigate the L2 self-concepts of young old language learners at Volkshochschulen in Germany. New Perspectives on Industrial Policy for a Modern Britain David Bailey, Keith

Cowling, Phil Tomlinson, 2015 In the aftermath of the global financial crisis of 2008 and the ensuing Great Recession of 2008 to 2013, the economic debate has begun to shift towards rebalancing the UK economy away from an over-reliance upon consumerism and the financial sector to generate growth towards more sustainable productive activities. The fallout from the financial crisis exposed the systemic failings of the dominant neo-liberal model to deliver balanced growth and there is now increasing recognition this rebalancing might best be achieved through the state pursuing an active industrial policy. Thus after a long hiatus, industrial policy is back in vogue at regional, national and EU levels, driven by concerns over competitiveness, globalisation, de-industrialisation, unemployment and the comparatively slow growth of the British and EU economies, especially in this post-recession phase. At the same time, industrial policy has been seen as a catalyst for designing economic recovery strategies at regional, national and EU levels as well as being a concerted strategy to develop new clean tech industries to tackle environmental challenges. This book brings together leading European-based experts, each with a long-standing interest in industrial policy. The chapters offer a broad set of perspectives on the many facets of industrial policy, including reflections upon past experiences of industrial policy from across the globe and critical analysis and advice upon contemporary UK industrial policy issues. They aim to critically inform and challenge policy makers, policy think tanks, industrialists, trade unions, academics and other stakeholders in framing the future course for industrial policy in the UK and indeed more widely. New Perspectives on Virtual and Augmented Reality Linda Daniela, 2020-05-31
