Mathematical Analysis and Applications in Modeling Priti Kumar Roy, Xianbing Cao, Xue-Zhi Li, Pratulananda Das, Satya Deo, 2020-03-10 This book collects select papers presented at the International Conference on Mathematical Analysis and Application in Modeling held at Jadavpur University Kolkata India on 9-12 January 2018. It discusses new results in cutting edge areas of several branches of mathematics and applications including analysis, topology, dynamical systems, nonlinear, topological, mathematical modeling, optimization, and mathematical biology. The conference has emerged as a powerful forum bringing together leading academics, industry experts, and researchers, offering them a venue to discuss, interact, and collaborate in order to stimulate the advancement of mathematics and its industrial applications.

Economics of Natural Resources and the Environment Erhun Kula, 1992-02-01. Looks in detail at the history of economic thought on natural resources and the environment, the economics of fisheries, forestry, mining, petroleum, coal, and natural gas deposits. There are also chapters devoted to environmental degradation and the economics of the world's natural wonders.

The U.S.-Mexican Border Environment Paul Ganster, 2002. National Accounts and environmentally Sustainable National Income Roefie Hueting, Bart de Boer, 2019-07-01. This book looks at some key economic aspects of the environment. Our planet is threatened by a wrong belief in a wrongly formulated growth. The term economic growth can only mean an increase in welfare but is often wrongly identified with production growth that may be destructive to the environment. The figure of standard national income NI or Gross Domestic Product GDP is useful for many purposes but inadequate for environmental policy making. This book develops the concept of an environmentally Sustainable National Income eSNI. eSNI is defined as the maximally attainable level of production using the technology of the year under review whereby the vital environmental functions possible uses of the not human-made physical surroundings remain available for future generations. Judgement of environmental sustainability requires that both NI and eSNI are looked at jointly alongside each other. The distance eNI - eSNI provides the relevant information about environmental sustainability. Calculations for the Netherlands for 1990-2015 provide a proof of concept. National statistical bureaus around the world are advised to provide this information for their own countries so that policy making around the world can use sound information about the national economies and the global environment.

Dr Roefie Hueting 1929 is an economist and was head of the department of environmental statistics at CBS Statistics Netherlands. Ir Bart de Boer 1947 is an electrotechnical engineer who applied systems analysis to environmental issues and sustainability.

Making the Environment Count United States Congress, Joint Economic Committee, 1992. Human Ecology Markus Nauser, Dieter Steiner, 2002-11-01. We face an environmental catastrophe of global proportions. The ecological rationality of modern society and of science in particular is in question. Science still responds to crises at the level of technocratic expertise and still treats society as an adaptive system. By bringing together a number of integrative approaches to the human environment problem, Human Ecology shapes a more radical fundamental agenda for change. The book creates a framework for a cohesive discourse for a new human ecology. From the notion that the individual person is an agent mediating between society and environment, the individual contributors recognize that the environmental crisis is really a crisis of society manifesting itself in an increasing fragmentation of lives in general and knowledge in particular Arguing for environmentally sustainable lifestyles the book envisages a new kind of consciousness and a new environment Counting for Nothing Marilyn Waring,1999-12-15 Safe drinking water counts for nothing A pollution free environment counts for nothing Even some people namely women count for nothing This is the case at least according to the United Nations System of National Accounts Author Marilyn Waring former New Zealand M P now professor development consultant writer and goat farmer isolates the gender bias that exists in the current system of calculating national wealth As Waring observes in this accounting system women are considered non producers and as such they cannot expect to gain from the distribution of benefits that flow from production Issues like nuclear warfare environmental conservation and poverty are likewise excluded from the calculation of value in traditional economic theory As a result public policy determined by these same accounting processes inevitably overlooks the importance of the environment and half the world s population Counting for Nothing originally published in 1988 is a classic feminist analysis of women s place in the world economy brought up to date in this reprinted edition including a sizeable new introduction by the author In her new introduction the author updates information and examples and revisits the original chapters with appropriate commentary In an accessible and often humorous manner Waring offers an explanation of the current economic systems of accounting and thoroughly outlines ways to ensure that the significance of the environment and the labour contributions of women receive the recognition they deserve The Living Economy Paul Ekins,2017-06-28 First Published in 1986 Economics is in trouble Its policy instruments are blunt its experts disagree and its theories are in disarray in the face of global economics disorder unprecedented levels of indebtedness endemic inflation high unemployment deepening world poverty and gross environmental degradation The Living Economy analyses conventional economic theory in the light of contemporary economic problems and finds its basic premises and assumptions flawed and its methodology suspect in several important respects The Living Economy covers a variety of topics from agricultural methods and policy to health and world trade reform Contributors come from a wide diversity of countries and continents including the USA Europe Africa and the Far East Each section is worth reading in its own right for itself and indeed by itself It is a book to be browsed through reflected upon and enjoyed at one s leisure Together the contributions form a rich tapestry of insights and inspirations They are in no way a simple repetition of Schumacher s thoughts Rather they form an authentic part of a wider intellectual tradition of which he was also a part albeit an early and important one Controlling Chemical Hazards R.P. Cote,P.G. Wells,2012-12-06 This book presents environmental protection managers and advanced students in environmental studies programs with an overview of the principles facts multidisciplinary approaches and some of the complex ities of the management of toxic substances The text explores critical issues facing managers responsible for prevent ing and controlling problems associated with the manufacture transport storage use and disposal of chemicals It does this from two perspectives The first is a disciplinary perspective that is environmental chemistry of toxicology engineering economics sociology and political science all which play a role in implementing comprehensive programs to manage chemicals. The second perspective is from the view of industry, government, academia and non-government organizations. For example, Chapter 5 is authored by technical managers of a major chemical company, Chapters 6 and 12 by government scientists and managers respectively, and Chapter 10 by a respected member of the environmental lobby. An appreciation of these perspectives is very important for developing and running effective chemical management programs.

Economics, Natural-Resource Scarcity and Development (Routledge Revivals) Edward B. Barbier, 2013-06-26. Global warming is an increasing problem, tropical forests are being wiped out and major upper watersheds are being degraded. Using insights provided by environmentalism, ecology and thermodynamics, this book first published in 1989 outlines an economic approach to the use of natural resources and particularly to the problem of environmental degradation. Edward Barbier reviews and critiques the long past of environmental and resource economics and then goes on to elaborate an economics which allows us to develop alternative strategies for dealing with the problems faced. With examples drawn from Latin America and Indonesia, he not only develops a major theoretical advance but shows how it can be applied. Barbier's work is an important and relevant contribution to the discussion surrounding the economics of environmental sustainability.

Economics of Natural Resources, the Environment and Policies E. Kula, 2012-12-06. The economic activities of humanity, particularly during the last couple of centuries, have had a profound impact on the natural environment. Fast depletion of the world's forest resources, fish stocks, fossil fuels and mine deposits have raised many moral as well as practical questions concerning present and future generations. Furthermore, a number of global environmental problems such as acid rain, the greenhouse effect and depletion of the ozone layer are causing concern throughout the world. What does economics say about the exploitation of nature's scarce resources? This book, which is a much expanded version of an earlier publication Economics of Natural Resources and the Environment, aims mostly at final year undergraduates reading subjects such as economics, business studies, environmental science, forestry, marine biology, agriculture and development studies. There is also a good deal of material, especially in the chapters on fisheries, forestry valuation and discounting, that post graduate students may find useful as stepping stones. The material presented stems from my lectures to final year students at the University of Ulster during the last 12 years and some of my ongoing research work. When I moved to Northern Ireland in 1982, I was given a course called Economics of Exhaustible Resources to teach. This has changed its title and focus a number of times along with the structure of the University. My early reading lists included a number of journal articles and books written on the subject.

Philosophy of Ecology and Capitalism Jacques Richard, 2023-12-02. There is a substantial body of work emerging currently seeking to address the problems caused by the economic model that has dominated the world for the last several hundred years, not least the negative impacts on the environment and sustainable health of the biosphere. This book adds to that body of literature and brings an interesting new set of ideas into play. The author offers an approach to the philosophies and politics of nature based on a reinterpretation of the history of capitalism in particular its concept of capital It leads to a new anti capitalist conception of the philosophy of ecology which takes into account at the same time history ethics politics law and economics By linking philosophy law economics and management this work seeks to go beyond the mono disciplinary and purely theoretical approaches which often characterize works devoted to the philosophy of nature or the philosophy of ecology It proposes a concrete philosophical alternative to modern capitalism which leads to ecological co management and care at all levels of society including that of political bodies and the reform of constitutions and parliaments In short it is a book for a theory and a practice of environmental action in the broad sense within the framework of an institutional revolution passing in particular through the heart of the capitalist system Linking the Natural Environment and the Economy: Essays from the Eco-Eco Group Carl Folke,Tomas Kåberger,2013-11-09 Science and Politics of Foreign Aid B. Hassler,2011-06-27

Contemporary international aid consists of a wide range of various support programs where the end result in many cases not only reflects the needs of the recipient country but also the interests of the donor country In Science and Politics of Foreign Aid Swedish Environmental Support to the Baltic States it is shown that this particular support has been directed primarily towards areas of joint concern such as air pollution and effluents to the Baltic Sea Environmental problems with primarily local effects have to a large extent been neglected in the Swedish support program The requirement on the Baltic recipient countries to finance a specific fraction of each joint program with local resources has furthermore drained the local national environmental budgets from resources making it very difficult for these countries to mitigate various local environmental hazards by themselves In contrast to many previous foreign aid studies where various donor country biases often are suggested but not empirically validated this book gives an in depth view of how a particular support program is influenced by specific and self interested considerations Empowerment John Friedmann,1992-07-27 Two thirds of the population of the world are poor and their number is growing in the first as well as in the third world despite billions of dollars of aid The economic development policies of the last two decades and the theory which gave rise to them have been discredited The rich are disillusioned apprehensive or uninterested while the poor are embittered and without hope the victims and agents of ignorance instability and environmental degradation The need for radical rethinking is urgent this book makes an important contribution towards that end John Friedmann argues that poverty should be seen not merely in material terms but as social political and psychological powerlessness He presents the case for an alternative development committed to empowering the poor in their own communities and to mobilizing them for political participation on a wider scale In contrast to centralized development policies devised and implemented at the national and international level alternative development restores the initiative to those in need on the grounds that unless people have an active role in directing their own destinies long term progress will not be achieved The author takes the household as the strategic starting point stressing its moral political and economic potential as a source of continuity and as a location for production From this basis he propounds a politics of emancipation that would enable the disempowered poor to assert their rights Empowerment provides a morally informed theoretical framework for a development policy that meets the needs of its recipients rather than of its makers

Planning in the Public Domain John Friedmann, 1987-10-21 John Friedmann addresses a central question of Western political theory how and to what extent history can be guided by reason In this comprehensive treatment of the relation of knowledge to action which he calls planning he traces the major intellectual traditions of planning thought and practice Three of these social reform policy analysis and social learning are primarily concerned with public management The fourth social mobilization draws on utopianism anarchism historical materialism and other radical thought and looks to the structural transformation of society from below After developing a basic vocabulary in Part One the author proceeds in Part Two to a critical history of each of the four planning traditions The story begins with the prophetic visions of Saint Simon and assesses the contributions of such diverse thinkers as Comte Marx Dewey Mannheim Tugwell Mumford Simon and Habermas It is carried forward in Part Three by Friedmann's own nontechnocratic dialectical approach to planning as a method for recovering political community

A History of National Accounting André Vanoli, 2005 In A History of National Accounting Andre Vanoli focuses on the history of accounting in the second part of the 20th century The book is about the relations between economic theories and the observation of the present and the past looked at from the viewpoint of economic measurement Some parts of the book are especially devoted to the French experience in this field but the point of view is deliberately universal The publication is about The birth of national accounting The evolution of systems of accounts and accounting issues in the perspective of international harmonization National accounts as a statistical synthesis Concepts and their relations with economic theory Uses and status of national accounting
