New Soviet Thinking And Us Nuclear Policy:

New Soviet Thinking and U.S. Nuclear Policy David B. Myers, 1990 This book is an examination of nuclear weapons policy options in light of recent declared changes in Soviet military strategy David B Myers addresses the question How should the United States respond to the fact that the Soviet Union has thousands of nuclear weapons aimed at the American homeland He points out that even if a Soviet American treaty cutting strategic weapons by fifty percent becomes a reality this question will remain compelling Given the current climate of glasnost US strategy now must carefully be rethought Myers discussion provides an explanation of essential policy alternatives the major arguments for each and criteria for evaluating all proposals In an effort to make the security options more accessible to readers Myers draws an original analogy between four criminal correction theories and four major policy options Nuclear deterrence strategy is compared to the theory of criminal deterrence strategic defense to social defense conventional defense to retribution and civilian based defense to rehabilitation He evaluates each policy by means of seven criteria coherence moral defensibility legal defensibility technical feasibility affordability adequacy vis a vis Soviet policy and value for disaster avoidance This work in applied philosophy clearly provides readers specialists as well as generalists with technical information policy alternatives and criteria to evaluate competing answers to one of the most crucial questions facing our nation Author note David B Myers Professor of Philosophy at Moorhead State University is the author of Between Marx and Nietzsche Soviet Strategy and the New Military Thinking Derek Leebaert, Timothy Dickinson, 1992 This book first published in 1991 analyses the unprecedented changes as well as the troubling continuities that characterized Soviet military thinking during the early 1990s Strategic Thinking, Deterrence and the US Ballistic Missile Defense Project Reuben Steff, 2016-04-01 A systematic critical survey of American strategic thinking and the strategic culture in which it is formed In particular this book seeks to interrogate the theory and strategy of nuclear deterrence and its relationship to the concept of missile defence Drawing widely on the theoretical literature in international relations and strategic studies it identifies the key groups that have competed over America's nuclear policy post 1945 and examines how the concept of missile defence went through a process of gestation and intellectual contestation leading to its eventual legitimization in the late 1990s Steff sheds light on the individuals groups institutions and processes that led to the decision by the Bush administration to deploy a national missile defence shield Additionally Steff systematically examines the impact deployment had on the calculations of Russia and China In the process he explains that their reactions under the Bush administration have continued into the Obama era revealing that a new great power security dilemma has broken out This Steff shows has led to a decline in great power relations as a consequence

Encyclopedia of American Foreign Policy Glenn P. Hastedt, 2014-05-14 Presents an A to Z reference guide that examines United States foreign policy New Political Thinking in the Nuclear Age Vladimir Viktorovich Sogrin, 1990 Title in colophon Novoe politicheskoe myshlenie v i aderny i vek The Power of Deterrence Amir Lupovici, 2016-09-01 Why do states persist in using force to enhance their deterrent posture even though it is not clear that it is effective This book develops an innovative framework to answer this question viewing deterrence as an idea This allows the author to explain how countries institutionalize deterrence strategy and how this internalization affects policy He argues that the US and Israel have both internalized deterrence ideas and become attached to these practices For them deterrence is not just a means to advance physical security but it constitutes their very selves as deterring actors As a result being unable to deter becomes a threat to their identity evoking strong emotional responses In recognizing these dynamics the book provides a fresh perspective on the US war in Iraq 2003 and the Israeli war in Lebanon 2006 both of which can be seen as attempts to repair each country's shaken sense of self

Innocent Weapons Margaret Peacock, 2014-08-25 In the 1950s and 1960s images of children appeared everywhere from movies to milk cartons their smiling faces used to sell everything including war In this provocative book Margaret Peacock offers an original account of how Soviet and American leaders used emotionally charged images of children in an attempt to create popular support for their policies at home and abroad Groups on either side of the Iron Curtain pushed visions of endangered abandoned and segregated children to indict the enemy's state and its policies Though the Cold War is often characterized as an ideological divide between the capitalist West and the communist East Peacock demonstrates a deep symmetry in how Soviet and American propagandists mobilized similar images to similar ends despite their differences Based on extensive research spanning fourteen archives and three countries Peacock tells a new story of the Cold War seeing the conflict not simply as a divide between East and West but as a struggle between the producers of culture and their target audiences
