Crowd Violence in American Modernist Fiction Benjamin S. West, 2013-04-05 This study explores numerous depictions of crowd violence literal and figurative found in American Modernist fiction and shows the ways crowd violence is used as a literary trope to examine issues of racial gender national and class identity during this period Modernist writers consistently employ scenes and images of crowd violence to show the ways such violence is used to define and enforce individual identity in American culture James Weldon Johnson William Faulkner Richard Wright Ernest Hemingway F Scott Fitzgerald and John Steinbeck for example depict numerous individuals as victims of crowd violence and other crowd pressures typically because they have transgressed against normative social standards Especially important is the way that racially motivated lynching and the representation of such lynchings in African American literature and culture

The Critics and Hemingway, 1924-2014 Laurence W. Mazzeno, 2015 Traces Hemingway's critical fortunes over the ninety years of his prominence telling us something about what we value in literature and why scholarly reputations rise and fall Hemingway burst on the literary scene in the 1920s with spare penetrating short stories and brilliant novels Soon he was held as a standard for modern writers Meanwhile he used his celebrity to create a persona like the stoic macho heroes of his fiction After a decline during the 1930s and 1940s he came roaring back with The Old Man and the Sea in 1952 Two years later he received the Nobel Prize While his popularity waxed and waned during his lifetime Hemingway's reputation among scholars remained strong as long as traditional scholarship dominated New approaches beginning in the 1960s brought a sea change however finding grave fault with his work and making him a figure ripe for vilification Yet during this time scholarship on him continued to appear His works still sell well and several are staples on high school and college syllabi A new scholarly edition of his letters is drawing prominent attention and there is a resurgence in scholarly attention to and approbation for his work Tracing Hemingway's critical fortunes tells us something about what we value in literature and why reputations rise and fall as scholars find new ways to examine and interpret creative work Laurence W Mazzeno is President Emeritus of Alvernia University Among other books he has written volumes on Austen Dickens Tennyson Updike and Matthew Arnold for Camden House's Literary Criticism in Perspective series
