How Everyone Became Depressed Edward Shorter, 2013-02-01 About one American in five receives a diagnosis of major depression over the course of a lifetime That's despite the fact that many such patients have no mood disorder they're not sad but suffer from anxiety fatigue insomnia or a tendency to obsess about the whole business. There is a term for what they have, writes Edward Shorter, and it's a good old-fashioned term that has gone out of use. They have nerves. In How Everyone Became Depressed, Edward Shorter, a distinguished professor of psychiatry and the history of medicine, argues for a return to the old-fashioned concept of nervous illness. These are, he writes, diseases of the entire body, not the mind, and as was recognized as early as the 1600s, Shorter traces the evolution of the concept of nerves and the nervous breakdown in western medical thought. He points to a great paradigm shift in the first third of the twentieth century, driven especially by Freud, that transferred behavioral disorders from neurology to psychiatry, spotlighting the mind, not the body. The catch-all term depression now applies to virtually everything, a jumble of non-disease entities created by political infighting within psychiatry, by competitive struggles in the pharmaceutical industry, and by the whimsy of the regulators. Depression is a real and very serious illness, he argues; it should not be diagnosed so promiscuously and certainly not without regard to the rest of the body. Melancholia, he writes, the quintessence of the nervous breakdown, reaches deep into the endocrine system, which governs the thyroid and adrenal glands among other organs. In a learned yet provocative challenge to psychiatry, Shorter argues that the continuing misuse of depression represents nothing less than the failure of the scientific imagination.

Handbook on Ethnicity, Aging, and Mental Health Deborah Padgett, 1995-01-30 This state-of-the-art, multi-disciplinary reference is the first to assess the empirical research and conceptual frameworks for understanding the mental health needs and services use of the ethnic elderly. Leading scholars, researchers, and clinicians in gerontology, epidemiology, psychiatry, psychology, sociology, anthropology, nursing, and social work appraise varying approaches, the demographics, the mental health status, and service use of the ethnic elderly, and issues in the diagnosis, treatment, and mental health service delivery for the ethnic aged: for African Americans, American Indians, Asian and Pacific Islander Americans, and Hispanic/Latino Americans. This unique handbook is a valuable resource and text for students, teachers, and professionals in a broad array of fields and settings. The handbook considers such problems as Alzheimer's Disease, depression, and problems of coping; culturally specific psychosocial nursing care programs; the role of culture and class in mental and physical co-morbidity among the elderly; and important life-course perspectives for specific groups. Students, teachers, and professionals in many fields and settings will find this unique handbook a valuable resource and text.
