Partnerships can be formed with a minimum of two individuals or entities, as prescribed by the Civil Code of the Philippines. However, partnerships can also have multiple partners, depending on the needs and objectives of the business. Corporations, as governed by Republic Act 11232 Section 10, allow for the organization of a corporation by any person, partnership, association, or corporation, singly or jointly with others, but not exceeding fifteen (15) in number. This provision outlines the maximum number of incorporators permitted to establish a corporation for any lawful purpose or purposes. However, it's important to note that natural persons who are licensed to practice a profession, as well as partnerships or associations organized for the purpose of practicing a profession, are subject to special regulations and may have restrictions on their ability to organize as a corporation. Additionally, all incorporators who are natural persons must be of legal age.

- Partnership:

In the Philippines, according to Art. 1767, a partnership is a contract of two or more persons who bind themselves to contribute money, property or industry to a common fund. Thus, the essence of partnerships is deeply rooted in mutual contributions. This includes money or financial investments, property assets, or even unique skills (to render public service) brought to the table by each partner. The partners directly infuse their resources into the partnership, creating a collective fund for business operations. Additionally, they may independently acquire loans that ultimately serve to benefit and bolster the partnerships' growth and success.

- Corporation:

Philippine corporations are in a privileged position, with the ability to issue shares of stock as a means to gather capital. This allows them to welcome investors into their fold, thereby raising substantial funds. Moreover, they have the option to increase their capital base by issuing bonds or securing loans from banks and financial institutions.
